Self-identity and Human Happiness Michael Dahlem, Michael W. Dahlem, 2005 Human happiness has been a perennial concern of philosophy The ancients believed that happiness represents the proper final end for mankind Classical utilitarians held that it constitutes the only thing good in itself Even the moral philosophy of the eighteenth century while emphasizing duty offered the promise of happiness This work combines an analysis of the Western philosophical tradition with the insights of Eastern mysticism and modern physics to offer a series of recommendations aimed at achieving the goal of human happiness Self-Identity and Powerlessness Alice Koubová, 2013-05-30 In Self Identity and Powerlessness Alice Koubová proposes a conception of human existence that does not essentially depend on the definition of self identity The author shows that the philosophical stress on human identity fails to grasp essential aspects of human existence By emphasizing the moments of Dasein's powerlessness in Heidegger's fundamental ontology she develops in her analysis of various philosophers literary examples and social psychology an original phenomenology of alternation of existence and affair How necessary is identity for thinking Are we capable of philosophical thought even when we have neither ourselves nor the world under our full control Is it possible to relax become powerless and yet think precisely These questions are to be answered in this book
