She Must Have Known The Trial Of Rosemary West

Harold Schechter

She Must Have Known The Trial Of Rosemary West:

She Must Have Known Brian Masters, 1997 Frederick West cheated everybody when he hung himself on New Year's Day 1995. Was this a sign of overwhelming guilt? Was West criminally insane or merely a sexual sadist of the worst kind? Brian Masters sets out to answer these questions. Attending the Rosemary West trial on a daily basis, Masters has come up with a penetrating study of the sexual obsession that led to the measured killing of twelve women and girls. In the wake of the horrific detail of murder, sadism and torture that has come to light in the last few months, Masters from his privileged courtroom vantage point looks closely at how and why ordinary human beings were driven to serial killing of the most devious kind and how an evil psychopath was able to ensnare so many in a web of unseeing complicity. He unravels with particular precision the legal means used to bring the whole matter to trial and weighs the evidence coolly and objectively. Brian Masters has established his reputation as an authority on the criminal and psychopathic mind. This is his highly reasoned and psychologically acute look at what has become Britain's serial killer trial of the century. New Visions of Crime Victims Carolyn Hoyle, Richard Young, 2002-08-14 This innovative collection presents original theoretical analyses and previously unpublished empirical research on criminal victimisation. Following an overview of the development and deficiencies of victimology, subsequent chapters present more detailed challenges to stereotypical conceptions of victimisation through their focus on male victims of domestic violence, victims of male on male rape, corporate victims and the victim-offenders who are the recipients of IRA punishment beatings. The second half of the book considers criminal justice responses to victimisation, focusing in particular on the potential of and limits to restorative justice, the social and gendered construction of the victim within contested trials and the exclusionary nature of current victim-centred initiatives. This important book will further the debate on how we conceptualise victims as well as their appropriate role within the criminal justice system. New Visions of Crime Victims will be of interest to academics, students, criminal justice practitioners and policy makers. It has particular implications for scholarship in the fields of victimology, restorative justice and feminist approaches to criminology and criminal justice. The integration of work by established criminologists such as Carolyn Hoyle, Paul Rock, Andrew Sanders and Richard Young with that of young, previously unpublished scholars makes for an interesting and stimulating book. As well as being a valuable addition to the literature, it can be used to support undergraduate and postgraduate courses in criminal justice and criminology. Searching for Suzy Graham McGredy-Hunt, 2012-01-01 This is a chronology of a private investigation into the disappearance of Suzy Lamplugh, the London Estate Agent. It began on the 28th July 1999 and lasted for four years. The research revealed a direct link between Suzy and John West, the younger brother of Fred West. At first, the research was given to the Metropolitan Police, who began a new review into the case in 2000. The investigation has opened up a whole new perspective on the Cromwell Street murders and three new victims have been named together with a possible third. After twenty-five years, the mystery of Suzy Lamplugh has finally been solved. Inside

The Subject of Murder Lisa Downing, 2024-05-31 The subject of murder has always held a particular fascination for us But since at least the nineteenth century we have seen the murderer as different from the ordinary citizen a special individual like an artist or a genius who exists apart from the moral majority a sovereign self who obeys only the destructive urge sometimes even commanding cult followings In contemporary culture we continue to believe that there is something different and exceptional about killers but is the murderer such a distinctive type Are they degenerate beasts or supermen as they have been depicted on the page and the screen Or are murderers something else entirely In The Subject of Murder Lisa Downing explores the ways in which the figure of the murderer has been made to signify a specific kind of social subject in Western modernity Drawing on the work of Foucault in her studies of the lives and crimes of killers in Europe and the United States Downing interrogates the meanings of media and texts produced about and by murderers Upending the usual treatment of murderers as isolated figures or exceptional individuals Downing argues that they are ordinary people reflections of our society at the intersections of gender agency desire and violence
