Shanghai Gone Qin Shao,2023-06-14 One of the best accounts of the reality of gentrification and urban development in China grounded with solid historical ethnographic and legal evidence Urban Studies In recent decades the centuries old city of Shanghai has been demolished and rebuilt into a gleaming megacity With its world famous skyscrapers it now ranks with New York and London as a hub of global finance But that transformation has come at a grave human cost In Shanghai Gone Qin Shao applies the concept of domicide the eradication of a home against the will of its dwellers to the sweeping destruction of neighborhoods families and life patterns that made way for the new Shanghai Shao gives voice to the holdouts and protesters who resisted domicide and demanded justice She follows among others a reticent kindergarten teacher turned diehard petitioner a descendant of gangsters and squatters who has become an amateur lawyer for evictees and a Chinese Muslim who has struggled to recover his ancestral home in Xintiandi an infamous site of gentrification dominated by a well connected Hong Kong real estate tycoon Highlighting the wrenching changes spawned by China's reform era Shao vividly portrays the corrupt and rapacious pursuit of growth and profit the personal wreckage it has left behind and the enduring human spirit it has unleashed

China's Emerging Cities Fulong Wu,2007-11-13 With urbanism becoming the key driver of socio economic change in China this book provides much needed up to date material and covers key topics on Chinese urban development

Planning Asian Cities Stephen Hamnett,Dean Forbes,2012-03-29 Stephen Hamnett and Dean Forbes have brought together some of the region's most distinguished urbanists to explore the planning history and recent development of Pacific Asia's major cities. They show how globalization and the competition to achieve global city status has had a profound effect on all these cities. But how resilient are these cities to the risks that they face? How can they manage continuing pressures for development and growth while reducing their vulnerability to a range of potential crises? And given the tradition of top-down centralized state-directed planning which drove the economic growth of many of these cities in the last century, what prospects are there of them becoming more inclusive and sensitive to the diverse needs of their populations and to the importance of culture heritage and local places in creating liveable cities?

The Globalisation of Real Estate Dallas Rogers, Sin Koh, 2018-12-07 Individual foreign investment in residential real estate by new middle class and super rich investors is re-emerging as a key issue in academic policy and public debates around the world. At its most abstract, global real estate is increasingly thought of as a liquid asset class that is targeted by foreign individual investors who are seeking to diversify their investment portfolios. But foreign investors are also motivated by intergenerational familial security, transnational migration strategies and short-term educational plans which are all closely entwined with global real estate investment. Government and local public responses to the latest manifestation of global real estate investment have taken different forms. These range from pro-foreign investment primarily justified on geopolitical and macro-economic grounds to anti-foreign investment for reasons such as mitigating public dissent and protecting the local housing market. Within this changing geopolitical context, this book offers a diverse range of case studies from Canada, Hong Kong, Singapore, Russia, Australia and Korea. It will be of interest to academics, policymakers and university students who are interested in the globalisation of local real estate. The chapters in this book were originally published in the International Journal of Housing Policy.

Remaking Chinese Urban Form Duanfang Lu, 2006-09-27 In this pioneering study of contemporary Chinese urban form, Duanfang Lu provides an analysis of how Chinese society constructed itself through the making and remaking of its built environment. She shows that as China's quest for modernity created a perpetual scarcity as both a social reality and a national imagination, the realization of planning ideals was postponed. The work unit, the socialist enterprise or institute, gradually developed from workplace to social institution which integrated work, housing and social services. The Chinese city achieved a unique geography made up in large part of self-contained work units. Remaking Chinese Urban Form provides an important reference for academics and students conducting research on China. It will be a key source for courses on Asia in architecture, urban planning, geography, sociology and anthropology at both the graduate and undergraduate level. The insightful yet accessible introduction to urban China will also be of interest to architects, urban designers and planners as well as general audience who wish to learn about contemporary Chinese society.

Building Globalization Xuefei Ren, 2011-04-15 From the years 2004 to 2008, Beijing and Shanghai witnessed the construction of an extraordinary number of new buildings, many of which were designed by architectural firms overseas. Combining ethnographic fieldwork, historical research and network analysis, Building

Globalization closely scrutinizes the growing phenomenon of transnational architecture and its profound effect on the development of urban space. Roaming from construction sites in Shanghai to architects' offices in Paris, Xuefei Ren interviews hundreds of architects, developers, politicians, residents, and activists to explore this issue. She finds that in the rapidly transforming cities of modern China, iconic designs from prestigious international architects help private developers to distinguish their projects, government officials to advance their careers, and the Chinese state to announce the arrival of modern China on the world stage. China leads the way in the globalization of architecture, a process whose ramifications can be felt from Beijing to Dubai to Basel. Connecting the dots between real estate speculation, megaproject construction, residential displacement, historical preservation, housing rights, and urban activism, Building Globalization reveals the contradictions and consequences of this new global urban frontier.

Urban Political Geographies Ugo Rossi, Alberto Vanolo, 2011-11-10

Ugo Rossi and Alberto Vanolo take us on a journey around the ascent and crisis of urban liberalism, providing a clear and highly readable analysis of key issues and debates in the field of urban political geography. Ola S. Derström, University of Neuchâtel. It is in the city trenches that the crises, contradictions, and counterpolitics of neoliberalization are finding some of their most vivid and consequential expressions, where new worlds are being imagined, made, and unmade. This has yet to be mapped. But in Urban Political Geographies, we have a timely and astute field guide to this unfolding process.

Jamie Peck, University of British Columbia. How can we think about the urban within a political and geographical framework? This compelling textbook scrutinizes urban politics through a theoretical and empirical lens to provide readers with a clear understanding of the relationship between political, spatial, and economic issues relating to the urban environment. Taking a truly global analysis, the book uses international comparative case studies from cities across the world, including London, Beijing, Austin, and Vancouver. It draws on ideas and theories from human geography, politics, sociology, economics, and development. Engaging in style and thorough in its coverage of the key issues, the book is essential reading for students and scholars looking for a book that deals with contemporary urban debates from a political, economic, and geographical perspective.

China Constructing Capitalism Michael Keith, Scott Lash, Jakob Arnoldi, Tyler Rooker, 2013-09-23

China has been growing at over ten per cent annually since 1978, but this has only come to very widespread notice in the past decade. This received wisdom about China has been largely of two types, both of which more or less understand China in the context of neoliberalism. The more business- or business-studies-oriented literature seems to argue that if China does not adapt the rule of clear and distinct property and contract law in short of Western institutions, its economy will stall. The second set of voices is more clearly from the left, arguing that the Chinese economy and city is neo-liberal. For them, China does not diverge widely from the Anglo-American model that from 2008 has brought the world economy to its knees. China Constructing Capitalism takes issue with these analyses. The authors argue that it is not Western neo-liberalism that is constructing the Chinese economy, but instead that China is constructing its own version of capitalism. The two central theses of their argument are economic life neo liberal economic life is individualized and disembedded while the China model is relational and situated urban change China has created a form of local state capitalism which stands in contrast to neoliberal versions of the city This book analyses China as a risk culture examining among others Chinese firms and political ties property development migrant urbanisms and share trading rooms It scrutinises the ever present shadow of the risk averse yet uncertainty creating state China Constructing Capitalism is a must read for social scientists policy makers and investors

Chinese Kinship Susanne Brandtstädter, Gonçalo D Santos, 2008-09-25 The essays in this volume present contemporary anthropological perspectives on Chinese kinship its historical complexity and its modern metamorphoses The collection draws particular attention to the reverberations of larger socio cultural and politico economic processes in the formation of sociality intimate relations family histories reproductive strategies and gender relations and vice versa Drawing on a wealth of ethnographic material from the late imperial period and from contemporary Taiwan and the People's Republic of China from northern and southern regions as well as from rural and urban settings the volume provides unique insights into the historical and spatial diversities of the Chinese kinship experience This emphasis on diversity challenges the classic lineage paradigm of Chinese kinship and establishes a dialogue with contemporary anthropological debates about human kinship reflecting on the emergence of radically new family formations in the Euro American context Chinese Kinship will be of interest to anthropologists and sinologists as to historians and social scientists in general Urban China in Transition John Logan, 2011-07-22 Using an innovative approach this book interprets the unprecedented transformation of contemporary China's major cities It deals with a diversity of trends and analyzes their sources Offers a multi dimensional analysis of urban life in China Highlights a diversity of trends in the areas of migration criminal victimization gated communities and the status of women suburbanization and neighbourhood associations Each chapter includes input from both an expert on urban life in China and an outside expert from the fields of sociology geography economics planning political science history demography architecture or anthropology An alternative theoretical perspective comparing the Chinese experience with other urban settings in the United States Poland Russia Vietnam East and South East Asia and South America Visual Arts, Representations and Interventions in Contemporary China Minna Valjakka, Meiqin Wang, 2025-10-01 This edited volume provides a multifaceted investigation of the dynamic interrelations between visual arts and urbanization in contemporary Mainland China with a focus on unseen representations and urban interventions brought about by the transformations of the urban space and the various problems associated with it Through a wide range of illuminating case studies the authors demonstrate how innovative artistic and creative practices initiated by various stakeholders not only raise critical awareness on socio political issues of Chinese urbanization but also actively reshape the urban living spaces The formation of new collaborations agencies aesthetics and cultural production sites facilitate diverse forms of cultural activism as they challenge the dominant ways of interpreting social changes and encourage civic participation in the production of alternative meanings in and of the city Their significance lies in their potential to question current values and power structures as well as to foster new subjectivities for disparate individuals and social groups

Developing China George C.S. Lin,2009-06-05 In the first systematic documentation of the pattern and processes of land development taking place in China in the last two decades George C S Lin advocates a fresh and innovative approach that goes beyond the privatization debate to probe directly into the social and political origins of land development He demonstrates the special and paradoxical nature of China s land development and challenges the perceived notion of a causal relationship between property rights definition efficient land use and sustained economic growth In contrast to the existing literature in which changes in urban and rural land are treated separately the rural urban interface is shown to be the most significant and contentious locus of land development where competition for land has been intensified and social conflicts frequently erupted Theoretically provocative and empirically well grounded Developing China provides a systematic insightful and authoritative account of the enormous development of China s precious land resources As such it will be of great interest to scholars students and professional practitioners in the fields of development studies political economy regional political ecology planning economics geography land use management and sustainable development with a special focus on contemporary China under market transition

Chinese Urban Transformation Chen Yuanzhi,Alan Hudson,He Lisheng,2019-06-27 Now an established global force China has experienced a sustained period of staggering economic growth since policy reform in the 1970s Chinese urbanisation is the most significant example of economic environmental and social change both within China and globally In recent years central government has made a concerted effort to encourage city governments to realign their priorities and achieve a balance between economic efficiency social justice and environmental protection Chinese Urban Transformation A Tale of Six Cities is a fascinating exploration of the dramatic development Chinese cities have undergone Tracing this transformation through a comprehensive analysis of social and economic change in six cities it unravels the complex relationship between policy outlook and role that urban development plays in China s view of itself including the tensions resulting from rapid social and economic change

Marginalization in Urban China F. Wu,C. Webster,2010-10-28 This book covers social inequalities in Chinese cities and provides comparative perspectives on inequality and social polarization neoliberalization and the poor the change of property rights rural to urban migration and migrants enclaves deprivation and residential segregation state social security and reemployment training programs

Dreadful Desires Charlie Yi Zhang,2022-02-07 In Dreadful Desires Charlie Yi Zhang examines how the Chinese state deploys affective notions of love to regulate the population and secure China s place in the global economy Zhang shows how the state frames love as a set of desires that encompass heteronormative intimacy familial and communal attachment upward mobility and private property ownership These desires as circulated in performance in the nationalistic ceremony same sex romantic fan fiction the wildly popular reality television dating show If You Are the One and the cult of patriarchal personality around Xi Jinping are explicitly based in oppressive systems of gender class and sexuality Zhang contends that such desires connect love to economic survival and gender normativity in ways that underwrite Chinese neoliberalism at the expense of individual flourishing By outlining how state framed forms of love create desires that cannot be fulfilled Zhang places China at the forefront of using affective attachments to nation leader and family in the global shifts toward exploitation and authoritarianism Planning World Cities Peter Newman,Andy Thornley,2011-06-21 This major comparative text on urban planning and the global and regional context in which it takes place examines what have been traditionally regarded as world cities New York London Tokyo and also a range of other important cities in America Europe and Asia The authors show the role planning has played in the way cities have responded to the forces of globalization and argue for the importance of diverse rather than one size fits all planning practices This fully revised second edition systematically brings the debates on the impact of globalization right up to date and provides integrated coverage of the latest planning theory and practice It also contains extended analysis of the implications of the rapid growth of Chinese cities such as Shanghai Hong Kong and Beijing New material is included on the impact of globalization on poorer mega cities like Mumbai and Johannesburg
