New Eastern Europe And The World Economy:

The New Eastern Europe And The World Economy Jozef M. Van Brabant, 2019-08-21 The unprecedented economic political and social changes that have followed the east European revolutions of late 1989 rank among the epochal events of the twentieth century The end of the cold war has opened up far reaching possibilities for international economic cooperation which may be able to stimulate economic growth in the region and revive interactions with the global economy This collection of essays comes to grips with the problems of repositioning the new Eastern economies in the global arena The contributors address four main themes freeing up foreign economic sectors through trade liberalization currency convertibility and greater access to markets for international capital the disintegration of the trade payment pricing and settlements systems based on the transferable ruble active participation in the key organizations entrusted with international financial monetary and trading regimes and strategies for using international economic assistance to alleviate adjustment costs with ongoing transition policies

Integrating Eastern Europe into the Global Economy: J.M. Van Brabant, 2012-12-06 This book is designed as a modest contribution to the ongoing deliberations about how to ease the fairly tight constraints on the external payments of many countries of the eastern part of Europe In the first instance this inquiry is addressed to those that have embarked on wide ranging systemwide reforms External constraints have been markedly hampering the introduction of market oriented economic mutations thereby raising the cost of transition far above levels expected at the outset of the present wave of uniquely restructuring the countries involved I explore here several angles of this discussion But three stand out One is the disintegration of the postwar framework for economic cooperation in that part of the world Another is the disarray brought about by incisive economic transformations in the area Finally various national regional and international interest groups are at work there hoping to mold somehow the drift of the reform or at least key components thereof in their own image In the process it is often forgotten as Ralf Dahrendorf 1990 p 41 so pointedly remarked that all systems mean serfdom including the natural system of a total market order in which no one tries to do anything other than guard certain rules of the game discovered by a mysterious sect of economic advisers

Eastern Europe in the World Economy Csaba, 1990 In this authoritative study of international economic relations first published in 1991 L. Industrial Policy in Eastern Europe J.M. Van Brabant, 2012-12-06 This volume in essence continues my recent contributions towards building up a better understanding of the wide range of obstacles besetting the transitions away from administrative planning in the former communist regimes in the eastern part of Europe It is self contained however As such it specifically addresses issues revolving around how best to govern economies and indeed societies more generally that are undergoing fundamental structural transformation and whether industrial policy can facilitate progressing with the vexing transformations that will have to be enacted over a protracted period of time Because of the bewildering variety of hindrances that the managers of the transition have been confronted with many of which were not even contemplated when the programs were first designed regaining a measure of good governance including notably good economic governance is critical in formulating a positive political economy of transition Arguably most critical is steering the processes of destruction and creation not creative destruction in the Schumpeterian sense In some cases this requires reallocating decommissioned resources both capital and labor to new activities Changing rules on the utilization of existing assets is evidently at the core of what the transition towards market based economic systems should be all about Very often however this requires establishing new economic activities from domestic and foreign savings

Social Justice and the Welfare State in Central and Eastern Europe Demetrius S. Iatridis, 2000-04-30 With the collapse of the Eastern Bloc Central and Eastern European states have had to confront fundamental changes in economic social and governmental structures So far many of these countries in transition from a command to a market based system have experienced rapid deterioration of socioeconomic conditions and standards of living Although there have been successes in some areas such as greater political and consumer choices the overall situation has reached crisis proportions as evidenced by increased unemployment crime and family disorganization The essays in this collection address significant issues dealing with the frameworks of social justice and equality policies for families and women implications for the welfare state and the impact on health care As such the collection is invaluable for all scholars and researchers involved with contemporary Central and Eastern European public policy and social conditions relations with Central and Eastern Europe The Soviet Union and Eastern Europe in the Global Economy Marie Lavigne, 1992-07-09 The Soviet Union and Eastern Europe are moving away from a centrally planned economy toward integration within the global economy How did this transition begin Is this an aim which all the countries can afford What conditions are to be met so that the countries will achieve a level of development comparable with the average level of their industrial partners In this 1992 volume leading international political economists from both the East and West provide an in depth analysis of these questions The contributors assess how the transition to the market requires liberalizing foreign trade introducing convertibility and transforming property structures all of which are also part of the ongoing domestic reform They also examine how these countries overcome their development lag and implement a restructuring policy

International Trade and Restructuring in Eastern Europe János Gács, 2013-11-11 János Gács and Georg Winekler In recognition of the key position of international trade in the transition and the need for concentrated discussions of topical trade issues the International Institute for Applied Systems Analysis IIASA organized an international conference on International Trade and Restructuring in Eastern Europe which took place in Laxenburg Austria on 19 and 21 November 1992 The Austrian National Bank joined IIASA to co sponsor the event Participants of the conference were experts of international economics and trade policy from East and West policy makers and representatives of international organizations like the IMF the Commission of the European Communities the OECD and the European Bank for Reconstruction and Development EBRD The papers prepared for the event and the lively discussions during the conference itself prove that the topics are intellectually challenging and timely for policy makers It has widely been recognized that international economic relations play a crucial role in the transition of countries of Central and Eastern Europe The scope speed and success of the efforts to transform the formerly centrally planned economies to market economies have increasingly become dependent on the pattern these countries have in their relation to the rest of the world Transition comprises three major processes macro stabilization marketization and restructuring The success of these three hinges to a large extent on the response of these economies to the new conditions set by international trade and exchange regimes A History of Eastern Europe Robert Bideleux, Ian Jeffries, 2006-04-10 A History of Eastern Europe Crisis and Change is a wide ranging single volume history of the lands between the lands which have lain between Germany Italy and the Tsarist and Soviet empires Bideleux and Jeffries examine the problems that have bedevilled this troubled region during its imperial past the interwar period under fascism under communism and since 1989 While mainly focusing on the modern era and on the effects of ethnic nationalism fascism and communism the book also offers original striking and revisionist coverage of ancient and medieval times the Hussite Revolution the Renaissance the Reformation and the Counter Reformation the legacies of Byzantium the Ottoman Empire and the Hapsburg Empire the rise and decline of the Polish Lithuanian Commonwealth the impact of the region's powerful Russian and Germanic neighbours rival concepts of Central and Eastern Europe the 1920s the more so as we shall see a little further on as the analysis of the Central and East European transformations has also contributed to introduce into political science and sociology theoretical systematizations first formulated in economics. In addition to this opening up to the objects and theories of economics the pseudo dilemma of simultaneity produced by a kind of feedback another series of effects on transitology and the related research domains. Contrary to most expectations and predictions in the wake of the 1989 upheavals affirmations that the dilemmas problems or challenges of the transitions in Central and Eastern Europe ought to have been dealt with and resolved one after the other in sequence in the manner of the more or less idealized trajectories of Great Britain or Spain trajectories significantly enough promoted far beyond the circles of scholars as a model of transition and above all contrary to the assumption that superposing a radical economic transformation upon a transition to democracy would make the whole edifice thoroughly unworkable unstable or dangerous it must be stated clearly out that the two processes in their simultaneity are not necessarily incompatible. This is one of the main findings stressed upon in several chapters of this book.
