New Essays On Light In August:

New Essays on Light in August Michael Millgate, 1987-06-26 Light in August 1932 is one of William Faulkner's most important, most challenging and most widely studied novels demanding to be approached from many angles and with a variety of critical and scholarly skills. Here five distinguished critics offer just such a range of approaches discussing the novel in terms of its composition and its place in Faulkner's oeuvre, its structure and narrative techniques, its relation to the religious, racial and sexual assumptions of the society it depicts, its presentation of women and handling of gender-related issues and the social and moral implications of the hero status accorded to a figure like Joe Christmas. Each contributor has had a double ambition to write clearly and directly thus making the volume accessible to the widest possible audience and to write freshly and originally so as to enhance even for those thoroughly familiar with the existing criticism understanding and appreciation of Light in August itself and of Faulkner's work as a whole. New Essays on Light in August, 1987 New essays on Light in August ANON., 1991 Sixteen Modern American Authors Jackson R. This engaging summary presents an analysis of Light in August by William Faulkner which centers around Lena Grove, a pregnant woman who is travelling from town to town in search of the father of her illegitimate unborn child and Joe Christmas, a troubled violent man whose mixed-race heritage has seen him ostracised from every community he has ever encountered. Christmas eventually finds a woman who seems prepared to accept and support him but when she is brutally murdered he is pursued by a bloodthirsty lynch mob. William Faulkner is widely recognised as one of the most significant American authors of the 20th century and was awarded the Nobel Prize in Literature in 1954. Relying on Mikhail Bakhtin's theory of language as both the creation of its user and a social construct, Judith Lockyer outlines Faulkner's discovery of the power and danger in language Five of Faulkner's characters Horace Benbow Quentin Compson Darl Bundren Isaac McCaslin and Gavin Stevens were endowed with a desire for the absolute inviolable word Faulkner both shares that desire and argues against it making the dialogue about language the subtext of all his novels Here this continuing dialogue is traced chronologically from Flags in the Dust Faulkner's third novel to A Fable a late novel here shown in a revealing new light Lockyer also connects Faulkner's ideas about language and narration to his social and thematic concerns particularly to America's legacy of racial strife This is a coherent convincing reading of Faulkner from the time he finds his true voice and subject in the South through the late novels

Faulkner's Artistic Vision Ryuichi Yamaguchi, 2004-04 Although William Faulkner's imagination is often considered solely tragic it actually blended what Faulkner himself called the bizarre and the terrible Not only did Faulkner's vision encompass both comedy and tragedy it perceived a latent humor in tragedy and vice versa As a result Faulkner's fiction is seldom simply comic or simply tragic Faulkner's comedy incorporates tragedy and despair and the humor in his novels may serve as well to intensify as to relieve a tragic or horrific effect This study examines Faulkner's first nine novels from Soldiers Pay to Absalom Absalom showing how humor is used to express theme how it appears in the action characters and discourse of each novel and how it contributes to the overall effect of each novel In each case even in the most pained and angry novels Faulkner's practice of humor expresses his view that humor is an inseparable element of human experience Ryuichi Yamaguchi is Professor of English and American literature at the Aichi University in Japan

Light in August Alwyn Berland, 1992

Light in August is William Faulkner's seventh novel but the fifth set in fictional Yoknapatawpha County Mississippi. Published in 1932, the novel is a compelling portrait of Southern society. It traces the history of a group of characters shaped by and responding to the religious, cultural, and racial traditions of the American South. Faulkner contrasts the story of Joe Christmas, whose unclear parentage makes him a target for the town's hatred, with the placid tale of Lena Grove's search for her lover. While Joe's story is created by prejudice, hatred, and mistrust, Lena's story is one of simple country people whose honor, courage, and affections are uncorrupted by either the past or the modern world. Alwyn Berland illuminates the relationship between these contrasting stories, demonstrating how Southern Calvinism, both as a theme and as an unconscious influence on Faulkner, is the key to a small cluster of themes that connects seemingly unrelated threads of narrative. Berland's study offers a detailed and accessible examination of Faulkner's style and discusses how his modernist and experimental techniques are related to his vision of human experience. Berland places Faulkner's achievement in the context of the ideas that interested him: Southern literary tradition and his influences on his contemporaries and later writers. The only booklength study of this novel available, Berland's work will be of great value to Faulkner scholars, students of Southern literature, and those interested in the development of the novel in the twentieth century.

Vision's Immanence Peter Lurie, 2020-03-03

William Faulkner occupied a unique position as a modern writer. Although famous for his modernist novels and their notorious difficulty, he also wrote extensively for the culture industry, and the works he produced for it, including short stories, adaptations, and screenplays, bore many of the hallmarks of consumer art. His experiences as a Hollywood screenwriter influenced him in a number of ways, many of them negative, while the films turned out by the dream factories in which he labored sporadically inspired both his interest and his contempt. Faulkner also disparaged the popular magazines, though he frequently sold short stories to them. To what extent was Faulkner's deeply ambivalent relationship to and involvement with American popular culture reflected in his modernist or art fiction? Peter Lurie finds convincing evidence that Faulkner was keenly aware of commercial culture and adapted its formulae, strategies, and in particular its visual techniques into the language of his novels of the 1930s. Lurie contends that Faulkner's modernism can be best understood in light of his reaction to the popular culture of his day. Using Theodor Adorno's theory about modern cultural production as a framework, Lurie's close readings of Sanctuary, Light in August, Absalom, Absalom!, and If I Forget Thee, Jerusalem uncover the cultural history that surrounded and influenced the development of Faulkner's art. Lurie is particularly interested in the influence of cinema on Faulkner's fiction and especially the visual strategies he both deployed and critiqued. These include the suggestion of cinematic viewing on the part of readers and of characters in each of the novels; the collective and individual acts of voyeurism in Sanctuary and Light in August; the exposing in Absalom, Absalom! and Light in August of stereotypical and cinematic patterns of thought about history and race; and the evocation of popular forms like melodrama and the movie screen in If I Forget Thee, Jerusalem. Offering innovative readings of these canonical works, this study sheds new light on

Space and Time in Language and Literature Lovorka Gruić Grmuša, Marija Brala Vukanović, 2009-10-02

Space and time their infiniteness and or their limitation s their coding conceptualization and the relationship between the two have been intriguing people for millennia Linguistics and literature are no exceptions in this sense This book brings together eight essays which all deal with the expression of space and or time in language and or literature The book explores the issues of space time and their interrelation from two different perspectives the linguistic and the literary The first section Time and Space in Language contains four papers which focus on linguistics i e explore issues relative to the expression of time and space in natural languages The topics under consideration include typology regarding the expression of spatial information in languages around the world Ch 1 space as expressed and conceptualized in neutral postural and verbs of fictive motion Ch 2 prepositional semantics Ch 3 aspectuality in Tamil Ch 4 All articles propose innovative topics and or approaches crossreferring when possible between space and time Given that all seem to propose at least some elements of language universality vs language variability the strong cognitivist nature of the approach even when the paper is not written within a cognitive linguistic framework represents a particularly strong feature of the section with a strong appeal to experts from fields that need not necessarily be linguistic The second section of this volume Space and Time in Literature brings together four essays dealing with literary topics Inherent in each narrative are both temporal and spatial implications because a literary text testifies of a certain time it is from and about a certain period as well as about a certain space even if virtual A particularly strong feature of these papers is that they envision space and time as complementary parameters of experience and not as conceptual opposites following the transfer of perspective through the whole century Departing from the late nineteenth century England's and Croatia's fictive spaces Ch 5 the topic moves via the American Southern Gothic focusing on Faulkner from the thirties to the early sixties Ch 6 via the post WWII perspectives on history probing the postmodern context of temporality Ch 7 to finally reach the contemporary era of post 9 11 space time Ch 8 The voyage from chapter five to eight is thus a journey through space and time that allows for some answers to the nature of reality of a variety of space times as conceived by both the authors of these essays as well as by the authors that these essays discuss The main goal of the editors has been to bring together different scientific traditions which can contribute complementary concerns and methodologies to the issues under exam from the literary and descriptive via the diachronic and typological explorations all the way to cognitive linguistic analyses bordering psycholinguistics and neuroscience One of the strengths of this volume thus lies in the diversity of perspectives articulated within it where the agreements but also the controversies and divergences demonstrate constant changes in society which in turn shapes our views of space time reality All this also suggests that science and literature are not above or apart from their culture but embedded within it and that there exists a strong relativistic interrelation between spatio temporal reality and culture The only hope to objectively envisage any if not all of the above is by learning how to move our thought through space time or to put it in simpler terms how to shift perspectives

Faulkner Lothar Hönnighausen, 2011-01-03 That Faulkner was a liar not just in his writing but also in his life has troubled many critics They have explained his numerous false stories particularly those about military honors he actually never earned and war wounds he never sustained with psychopathological imposture theories The drawback of this approach is that it reduces and oversimplifies the complex psychological and aesthetic phenomenon of Faulkner's role playing Instead this critical study by one of the most acclaimed international Faulkner scholars takes its cue from Nietzsche's concept of truth as a mobile army of metaphors and from Ricoeur's dynamic view of metaphor and treats the wearing of masks not as an ontological issue but as a matter of discourse Hönnighausen examines Faulkner's interviews and photographs for the fictions they perpetuate Such Faulknerian role playing he interprets as a mode of organizing experience and relates it to the crafting of the artist's various personae in his works Mining metaphor as well as modern theories on social role playing Hönnighausen examines unexplored aspects of image creation and image reception in such major Faulkner novels as The Sound and the Fury Light in August A Fable and Absalom Absalom
