Unicorns James Hunecker, 1917

Hierarchy Theory Valerie Ahl, T. F. H. Allen, 1996 Sugar pork beer corn cider scrapple and hoppin' John all became staples in the diet of colonial America The ways Americans cultivated and prepared food and the values they attributed to it played an important role in shaping the identity of the newborn nation In A Revolution in Eating James E. McWilliams presents a colorful and spirited tour of culinary attitudes tastes and techniques throughout colonial America Confronted by strange new animals plants and landscapes settlers in the colonies and West Indies found new ways to produce food Integrating their British and European tastes with the demands and bounty of the rugged American environment early Americans developed a range of regional cuisines From the kitchen tables of typical Puritan families to Iroquois longhouses in the backcountry and slave kitchens on southern plantations McWilliams portrays the grand variety and inventiveness that characterized colonial cuisine As colonial America grew so did its palate as interactions among European settlers Native Americans and African slaves created new dishes and attitudes about food McWilliams considers how Indian corn once thought by the colonists as fit for swine became a fixture in the colonial diet He also examines the ways in which African slaves influenced West Indian and American southern cuisine While a mania for all things British was a unifying feature of eighteenth century cuisine the colonies discovered a national beverage in domestically brewed beer which came to symbolize solidarity and loyalty to the patriotic cause in the Revolutionary era The beer and alcohol industry also instigated unprecedented trade among the colonies and further integrated colonial habits and tastes Victory in the American Revolution initiated a culinary declaration of independence prompting the antimonarchical habits of simplicity frugality and frontier ruggedness to define American cuisine McWilliams demonstrates that this was a shift not so much in new ingredients or cooking methods as in the way Americans imbued food and cuisine with values that continue to shape American attitudes to this day

Imagination Roman expresses that we as humans have the ability to think by thought power as humans on this most precious Earth we each have the power within us to create through manifestation anything we choose simply by the power of our own thoughts Roman believes we are all thinking beings that every thought we each have has the possibilities of becoming our own reality be it negative thoughts or positive thoughts which in turn creates our personal existence either in a negative way or a positive way he says we are not in reality physical it only appears to be that way because we are so highly conditioned by our own beliefs systems we are in fact Living Energy in the making of becoming Living Consciousness The main reason he wrote and created his new book The Dream Assassin was to show all of humanity that Imagination is real and at the same time create magnificent imaginative magic that would not only bring awareness but ignite the true inner passion of every individual that reads this book but also to see the movie when it is created in the future to come As Albert Einstein the great Theoretical Physicist said on many occasions Reality is merely an Illusion all be it a very persistent one It s like saying just because you cannot touch something doesn t mean it is not real because it may be vibrating simply at another level of consciousness
