Based on rapid advances in what is known about how people learn andhow to teach effectively this important book examines the coreconcepts and central pedagogies that should be at the heart of anyteacher education program Stemming from the results of acommission sponsored by the National Academy of Education Preparing Teachers for a Changing World recommends thecreation of an informed teacher education curriculum with thecommon elements that represent state of the art standards for theprofession Written for teacher educators in both traditional andalternative programs university and school system leaders teachers staff development professionals researchers andeducational policymakers the book addresses the key foundationalknowledge for teaching and discusses how to implement thatknowledge within the classroom Preparing Teachers for a Changing World recommends that in addition to strong subject matter knowledge all new teachershave a basic understanding of how people learn and develop as well as how children acquire and use language which is the currency of education. In addition, the book suggests that teaching professionals must be able to apply that knowledge in developing curriculum that attends to students' needs, the demands of the content, and the social purposes of education in teaching specific subject matter to diverse students in managing the classroom, assessing student performance, and using technology in the classroom.

Cultivating High-Quality Teaching Through Induction and Mentoring Carol A. Bartell, 2005. The book also contains a special emphasis on underprepared teachers and urban schools, those most in need of effective induction and mentoring, and also the group that benefits the most from these types of programmes.
