Computer-based Education ,1989      Handbook of Research on Barriers for Teaching 21st-Century Competencies and the Impact of Digitalization Dhir, Harpreet Kaur,2021-06-25 The need to develop 21st century competencies has received global recognition but instructional methods have not been reformed to include the teaching of these skills Multiple frameworks include creativity critical thinking communication and collaboration as the foundational competencies Complexities of planning curriculum and delivering instruction to develop the foundational competencies requires professional training However despite training instructional practice can be impacted by barriers caused by personal views of teachers economic constraints access to resources social challenges pandemic overwhelming pace of global shifts and other influences With digitalization entering the field of education it is unclear if technology has helped in removing or eliminating the barriers or has itself become another obstruction in integrating the competencies Gaining an educator's perspective is essential to understanding the barriers as well as solutions to mitigate the impediments through innovative instructional methods being practiced across the globe via digital or non digital platforms The need for original contributions from educators exists in this area of barriers to 21st century education and the role of digitalization The Handbook of Research on Barriers for Teaching 21st Century Competencies and the Impact of Digitalization discusses teaching the 21st century competencies namely critical thinking creativity collaboration and communication This book presents both the problems or gaps causing barriers and brings forth practical solutions digital and non digital to meet the educational shifts

The chapters will determine the specific barriers that exist whether political social economic or technological to integrating competencies and the methods or strategies that can eliminate these barriers through compatible instructional approaches. Additionally the chapters provide knowledge on the impacts of digitalization in general on teaching and learning and how digital innovations are either beneficial to removing impediments for students or rather causing obstructions in integrating the four competencies. This book is ideally intended for educators and administrators working directly with students, educational researchers, educational software developers, policymakers, teachers, practitioners and students interested in how 21st century competencies can be taught while facing the impacts of digitalization on education. Storied Doctorates

Maria Xypaki, Eleni Sinakou, María Angélica Mejía-Cáceres, Ailim Schwambach, 2021-09-03. This book brings together the diverse narratives of researchers' personalized stories about the process of doing doctoral research (PhD) in the field of Environmental and Sustainability Education (ESE) and about the life after the completion of such life-forming experience. The narratives go beyond the academic to discuss the different ways in which doctoral study in the field of environmental and sustainability education is experienced at the personal and professional level. Contributors are located in different countries in Europe, Australasia and Latin America. The different countries that the authors write from matters because it contextualizes both the process of studying environmental and sustainability education and the way in which this is experienced at a time when the world has become increasingly conscientized towards environmental challenges. As such, the book is appreciated by established and emerging scholars in this field and in related fields around the world. Readers are presented with a comprehensive volume ideal for aspiring ESE researchers, supervisors, policy makers and practitioners.
