In Twilight and in Dawn Barnett Richling, 2012-10-01 When New Zealand born and Oxford educated anthropologist Diamond Jenness set aside hopes of building a career in the South Pacific to join Vilhjalmur Stefansson s Canadian Arctic Expedition he had little idea of what lay ahead But Jenness thrived under the duress of that transformational experience the groundbreaking ethnographic work he accomplished recounted in People of the Twilight and in Dawn in Arctic Alaska proved to be a lasting contribution to twentieth century anthropology and the foundation of a career he would devote to researching Canada s first peoples Barnett Richling draws upon a wealth of documentary sources to shed light on Jenness s tenure with the Anthropological Division of the National Museum of Canada a forerunner of the Canadian Museum of Civilization during which his investigations took him beyond the Arctic to seven First Nations communities from Georgian Bay to British Columbia s interior Jenness was renowned as a pre eminent scholar of Inuit culture but he also stood out for the contributions his field work made to linguistics ethnology material culture and Northern archaeology His story is also an institutional one Jenness worked as a public servant at a time when the federal government spearheaded anthropological research although his abiding commitment to the first peoples of his adopted homeland placed him at odds with Ottawa s approach to aboriginal affairs In Twilight and in Dawn is an exploration of one man s life in anthropology and of the conditions at the museum on the reserves in society s mainstream and in the world at large that inspired and shaped Jenness s contributions to science to his profession and to public life An informative study of the evolution of a discipline focused through the life of one of its leading practitioners In Twilight and in Dawn is an illuminating look at anthropological thought and practice in Canada during the first half of the twentieth century Iroquois in the West Jean Barman, 2019-03-04 Two centuries ago many hundreds of Iroquois principally from what is now Kahnaw ke left home without leaving behind their ways of life Recruited to man the large canoes that transported trade goods and animal pelts from and to Montreal some Iroquois soon returned while others were enticed ever further west by the rapidly expanding fur trade Recounting stories of Indigenous self determination and self sufficiency Iroquois in the West tracks four clusters of travellers across time place and generations a band that settled in Montana another ranging across the American West others opting for British Columbia and the Pacific Northwest and a group in Alberta who were evicted when their longtime home became Jasper National Park Reclaiming slivers of Iroquois knowledge anecdotes and memories from the shadows of the past Jean Barman draws on sources that range from descendants recollections to fur trade and government records to travellers accounts What becomes clear is that no matter the places or the circumstances the Iroquois never abandoned their senses of self Opening up new ways of thinking about Indigenous peoples through time Iroquois in the West shares the fascinating adventures of a people who have waited over two hundred years to be heard Studying Arctic Fields Richard C. Powell, 2017-12-12 In recent years the circumpolar region has emerged as the key to understanding global climate change The plight of the polar bear resource extraction debates indigenous self determination and competing definitions of sovereignty among Arctic nation states have brought the northernmost part of the planet to the forefront of public consideration Yet little is reported about the social world of environmental scientists in the Arctic What happens at the isolated sites where experts seek to answer the most pressing questions facing the future of humanity Portraying the social lives of scientists at Resolute in Nunavut and their interactions with logistical staff and Inuit Richard Powell demonstrates that the scientific community is structured along power differentials in response to gender class and race To explain these social dynamics the author examines the history and vision of the Government of Canada's Polar Continental Shelf Program and John Diefenbaker's Northern Vision combining ethnography with wider discourses on nationalism identity and the postwar evolution of scientific sovereignty in the high Arctic By revealing an expanded understanding of the scientific life as it relates to politics history and cultures Studying Arctic Fields articulates a new theory of field research Advocating for a greater appreciation of science in the remote parts of the world Studying Arctic Fields is an innovative approach to anthropology environmental inquiry and geography and a landmark statement on Arctic science as a social practice
