National Capacity In Forestry Research:

National Capacity in Forestry Research National Research Council, Division on Earth and Life Studies, Board on Agriculture and Natural Resources, Committee on National Capacity in Forestry Research, 2002-06-21 Forests are major components of the earth's natural resources and they are increasingly critical to the welfare of the U.S. economy, environment and population. Desires to improve forest management and productivity, preserve biodiversity, maintain ecologic integrity and provide societal services such as recreation and tourism necessitate a strong forestry research base. Given the clear importance of forestry research in sustaining forests for the future, the U.S. Department of Agriculture, USDA Forest Service asked the Board on Agriculture and Natural Resources of the National Academies to undertake a study of the nation's capacity in forestry research. The Committee on National Capacity in Forestry Research was appointed to carry out the study which was conducted to review the current expertise and status of forestry research and to examine the approaches of natural resources education and forestry research organizations to meet future needs. National Report on Sustainable Forests -- 2011 Guy Robertson, 2012-10-07 Capacity development in national forest monitoring Brice Mora, Martin Herold, Veronique De Sy, Arief Wijaya, Louis Verchot, Jim Penman, 2013-11-22 The development of a system for forest monitoring and measurement reporting and verification (MRV) is an on-going priority and challenge for REDD countries. Although many countries already have some form of national forest monitoring in place, the existing capacity often falls short of the level required to participate fully in REDD. In this context, a group of experts from around the world met in September 2012 to share their experiences and to discuss some of the central and at times controversial issues for national forest monitoring readiness and REDD. A National Program of Forest Research Society of American Foresters, Earle Hart Clapp, 1926 Capacity for Forestry Research in Selected Countries of West and Central Africa M. Kowero, François Tchala-Abina, 1999 Forest genetic resources conservation and management: national consultative workshops of seven South and Southeast Asian countries, 2009 Tropical Forestry Research, 1991 National Report on Sustainable Forests, 2003 This site also contains other information about sustainable resource management. Annual Report 2000 CIFOR, 2002-06-12 Forestry Policies of Selected Countries in Asia and the Pacific Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, 1993-01-01 General Technical Report PNW-GTR, 2005 Forestry Policies of Selected Countries in Africa Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, 1996-01-01 Proceedings of a Regional Expert Consultation on Forestry Policies in Africa Accra, Ghana, October 1995 Parallel texts in English/French Miscellaneous Publication, 1931 Assessment of forest data availability and related technical capacity needs in West Africa Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, 2023-11-09 This forest data assessment was conducted as part of the five-year Global Transformation of Forests for People and Climate, a focus on West Africa project funded by the Swedish International Development Cooperation Agency (Sida). This document aims to provide quality data to support decision making and sustainable management of forest and land resources at both national and subregional levels It also seeks to develop processes that could be replicated in other subregions within Africa and outside the region This document is one of the outputs of the project and provides information on existing forest data in the Economic Community of West African States ECOWAS countries critical information gaps on forest condition and land use and land cover dynamics and capacity development needs

State of the World's Forests 2007 Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations,2007-01-01 This is the 7th edition of the FAO s biennial report on the state of global forest resources recent developments and emerging issues in the forest sector This edition focuses on progress towards sustainable forest management at the regional and global levels with each regional report structured according to seven thematic elements the extent of forest resources biological diversity forest health and vitality productive functions of forest resources protective functions of forest resources socio economic functions and legal policy and institutional frameworks These summaries are based on the most current information available including new data from the Global Forest Resources Assessment 2005 FRA 2005 The report goes on to consider 18 key issues in the forest sector including climate change forest landscape restoration forest tenure invasive species wildlife management and wood energy The overall conclusion is that whilst progress is being made it is very uneven with those regions with developing economies and tropical ecosystems continuing to lose forest area whilst lacking adequate institutions to reverse this trend The biggest limitation for evaluating progress is weak data with many countries lacking the financial resources to undertake national forest assessments

Agency Capacity for Recreation Science and Management Lee K. Cervený,Clare Ryan,2008 This report examines the capacity of natural resource agencies to generate scientific knowledge and information for use by resource managers in planning and decisionmaking This exploratory study focused on recreation in the U S Department of Agriculture Forest Service A semistructured open ended interview guide elicited insights from 58 managers and 28 researchers about recreation issues information exchange and research management interactions Data were coded and analyzed using Atlas ti a qualitative analysis software program Results indicate that recreation managers seek information to address user conflicts and manage diverse activities across sites and landscapes Managers do not always turn to the research community when looking for scientific information and are uncertain about the proper channels for communication Managers consult a variety of information sources and aggregate various types of scientific information for use in planning and management Managers desire greater and more diverse interactions with researchers to promote knowledge exchange useful for addressing recreation problems Barriers to interaction include organizational differences between management and research researcher responsiveness relevance of information to manager needs and the lack of formal interaction opportunities Several structural processes were suggested to facilitate opportunities for greater interaction and information exchange
