relationships between television and society in Canada may yield a more successful broadcasting policy more popular television programming and a better understanding of the links between culture and the body politic As the European Community moves closer to political unity the Canadian case may become more relevant to Europe which Collins suggests already fears the Canadianization of its television He maintains that a European multilingual society without a shared culture or common European audio visual sphere and with viewers watching foreign television can survive successfully as a political entity just as Canada has      Consociational Democracy Kenneth D.
