Conservation in the Anthropocene Fred Van Dyke,2025-03-06 This book provides a critical assessment of conservation in the Anthropocene grounded in the personal historical and cultural development of human interaction with nature The author argues that conservation can no longer be primarily about preserving nature but must adapt its efforts to promote changes through which humans create a landscape that is neither abandoned nor degraded but used well by humans and non humans alike The book first reviews the origin of ideas and conditions that have led to the concept and classification of the Anthropocene and explores how the author s own interactions with nature were shaped through his experience as a conservation biologist Next it considers how humans have come to be the primary drivers of ecological activity geological events and climate change Chapters then focus on the need for new conservation thinking regarding novel ecosystems urban conservation the role of Indigenous Peoples in conservation and the value of protected areas PAs parks and wilderness The book concludes by identifying strategies for effective conservation and argues for a new formulation of conservation values that redefine human relationships and interaction with nature Chapters are enlivened by the personal experiences of the author and the first person narratives of conservation activists and scientists throughout the world who are learning to practice and succeed in conservation efforts under Anthropogenic conditions Drawing on global examples this book will be of great value to students and scholars of biodiversity conservation and environmental science ready to consider a new way of looking at the care and nurture of nature in the Anthropocene

Patterns and Processes of Speciation in Ancient Lakes Thomas Wilke,Risto Väinölä, Frank Riedel,2009-04-02 Ancient lakes are exceptional freshwater environments that have continued to exist for hundreds of thousands of years They have long been recognized as centres of biodiversity and hotspots of evolution During recent decades speciation in ancient lakes has emerged as an important and exciting topic in evolutionary biology The contributions in this volume deal with patterns and processes of biological diversification in three prominent ancient lake systems Of these the famous East African Great Lakes already have a strong tradition of evolutionary studies but the two other systems have so far received much less attention The exceptional biodiversity of the European sister lakes Ohrid and Prespa of the Balkans has long been known but has largely been neglected in the international literature until recently The rich biota and problems of its evolution in the two central lake systems on the Indonesian island of Sulawesi in turn have only lately started to draw scientific attention This volume aims at deepening the awareness of the unusual biological diversity in ancient lakes in general and of the role of these lakes as natural laboratories for the study of speciation and diversification in particular It should stimulate further research that will lead to a better understanding of key evolutionary processes in these lakes and to knowledge that might help in mitigating the deterioration of their diversity in the future Atlas of Travel and Tourism Development Myra

Shackley, 2007-03-14 From travel in the ancient and classical world to the growth of underwater tourism in the Great Barrier Reef and the influence of the Gulf War on regional tourism the Atlas of Travel and Tourism Development is a new departure from conventional texts providing a unique overview of the growth of the tourism industry Divided into three sections the text looks first at the past examining the influence of global geography on travel patterns and provides an overview of the history of travel and tourism It then moves onto the present using a regional framework to demonstrate how the physical and historical geography of each area is related to tourism development The final section provides a forecast of future trends for the next two decades AKASHVANI All India Radio (AIR), New Delhi ,1968-02-04 Akashvani English is a programme
