Redesigned Forest By Maser Chris:

The Redesigned Forest Chris Maser, 1990 Wild Hunger Bruce Wilshire, 1999-10-27 Why is it that even amidst affluence and power our culture is plagued by a variety of addictions In this pioneering work Bruce Wilshire searches for answers by giving serious attention to our genetic legacy from our hunter gatherer ancestors as well as to the unique ways we adapt to our environment through the practice of science and the creation of art and cities The work considers remedies for specific addictions including drugs alcohol cigarettes and gambling suggesting that wilderness exploration in the arts myths and ceremonies can help us rediscover what it means to be human creatures Bringing together the insights of philosophy religion cultural anthropology behavioral biology and the vast socio medical literature on addiction Wilshire ingeniously explores the limits of our adaptive capacity and the costs of depleting the natural regenerative functions of the Readings in the Philosophy of Technology David M. Kaplan, 2009-10-16 Ideal for professors who want to provide a body comprehensive set of the most important readings in the philosophy of technology from foundational to the cutting edge this book introduces students to the various ways in which societies technologies and environments shape one another The readings examine the nature of technology as well as the effects of technologies upon human knowledge activities societies and environments Students will learn to appreciate the ways that philosophy informs our understanding of technology and to see how technology relates to ethics politics nature human nature computers science food and animals Recovery Project, Klamath National Forest, Final Environmental Impact Statement United States. Forest Service. Pacific Southwest Region, 1990 Thinking like a Mall Steven Vogel, 2016-09-02 A provocative argument that environmental thinking would be better off if it dropped the concept of nature altogether and spoke instead of the built environment Environmentalism in theory and practice is concerned with protecting nature But if we have now reached the end of nature as Bill McKibben and other environmental thinkers have declared what is there left to protect In Thinking like a Mall Steven Vogel argues that environmental thinking would be better off if it dropped the concept of nature altogether and spoke instead of the environment that is the world that actually surrounds us which is always a built world the only one that we inhabit We need to think not so much like a mountain as Aldo Leopold urged as like a mall Shopping malls too are part of the environment and deserve as much serious consideration from environmental thinkers as do mountains Vogel argues provocatively that environmental philosophy in its ethics should no longer draw a distinction between the natural and the artificial and in its politics should abandon the idea that something beyond human practices such as nature can serve as a standard determining what those practices ought to be The appeal to nature distinct from the built environment he contends may be not merely unhelpful to environmental thinking but in itself harmful to that thinking The question for environmental philosophy is not how can we save nature but rather what environment should we inhabit and what practices should we Forest Dreams, Forest engage in to help build it Klamath National Forest (N.F.), Baldy Fire Recovery Project, 1990

Nightmares Nancy Langston, 2009-11-23 Across the inland West forests that once seemed like paradise have turned into an ecological nightmare Fires insect epidemics and disease now threaten millions of acres of once bountiful forests Yet no one can agree what went wrong Was it too much management or not enough that forced the forests of the inland West to the verge of collapse Is the solution more logging or no logging at all In this gripping work of scientific and historical detection Nancy Langston unravels the disturbing history of what went wrong with the western forests despite the best intentions of those involved Focusing on the Blue Mountains of northeastern Oregon and southeastern Washington she explores how the complex landscapes that so impressed settlers in the nineteenth century became an ecological disaster in the late twentieth Federal foresters intent on using their scientific training to stop exploitation and waste suppressed light fires in the ponderosa pinelands Hoping to save the forests they could not foresee that their policies would instead destroy what they loved When light fires were kept out a series of ecological changes began Firs grew thickly in forests once dominated by ponderosa pines and when droughts hit those firs succumbed to insects diseases and eventually catastrophic fires Nancy Langston combines remarkable skills as both scientist and writer of history to tell this story Her ability to understand and bring to life the complex biological processes of the forest is matched by her grasp of the human forces at work from Indians white settlers missionaries fur trappers cattle ranchers sheep herders and railroad builders to timber industry and federal forestry managers The book will be of interest to a wide audience of environmentalists historians ecologists foresters ranchers and loggers and all people who want to understand the changing lands of the West Secrets of the Old Growth Forest David Kelly, Gary Braasch, 1988 A breathtaking and heartbreaking look at what remains of the great Pacific forest that once stretched from California to Alaska The text is both precise and passionate the photographs spiritual in their intensity Catch it while you can before it's recataloged under history RC Annotation copyrighted by Book News Inc Portland OR

Orr,1992-01-01 The most important discoveries of the 20th century exist not in the realm of science medicine or technology but rather in the dawning awareness of the earth's limits and how those limits will affect human evolution Humanity has reached a crossroad where various ecological catastrophes meet what some call sustainable development While a great deal of attention has been given to what governments corporations utilities international agencies and private citizens can do to help in the transition to sustainability little thought has been given to what schools colleges and universities can do Ecological Literacy asks how the discovery of finiteness affects the content and substance of education Given the limits of the earth what should people know and how should they learn it Against Capitalism John Bellamy Foster, 2002-02 In recent years John Bellamy Foster has emerged as a leading theorist of the Marxist perspective on ecology His seminal book Marx s Ecology Monthly Review Press 2000 discusses the place of ecological issues within the intellectual history of Marxism and on the philosophical foundations of a Marxist ecology and has become a major point of reference in ecological debates This historical and philosophical focus is now supplemented by more directly political engagement in his new book Ecology against Capitalism In a broad ranging treatment of contemporary ecological politics Foster deals with such issues as pollution sustainable development technological responses to environmental crisis population growth soil fertility the preservation of ancient forests and the new economy of the Internet age Foster's introduction sets out the unifying themes of these essays enabling the reader to draw from them a consolidated approach to a rapidly expanding field of debate which is of critical importance in our times Within these debates on the politics of ecology Foster's work develops an important and distinctive perspective Where many of these debates assume a basic divergence of red and green issues and are concerned with the exact terms of a trade off between them Foster argues that Marxismproperly understoodalready provides the framework within which ecological questions are best approached This perspective is advanced here in accessible and concrete form taking account of the major positions in contemporary Gardening with a Wild Heart Judith Larner Lowry, 2007-03-19 Judith Lowry s voice and experiences ecological debate make a rich matrix for essays that include discussions of wildflower gardening the ecology of native grasses wildland seed collecting principles of natural design and plant animal interactions.
