

REFLECTIONS ON COMMUNITY STUDIES

Manuel Calvino

Universidad de La Habana
Havana, Cuba

In this article, the author reflects on some of the limitations of the field of Community Psychology. The critical reflections offered focus on: (a) the sterile quality of the field's alternatives between offering paternalistic or utopian perspectives on how community processes operate; (b) the field's reliance on scientific objectivity and neutrality; (c) the field's ignorance of those who live in the community and the consequent presentation of "disembodied" communities; (d) the field's ahistorical and decontextualized treatment of community phenomena; and (e) the paradoxical nature of providing help to a community. © 1998 John Wiley & Sons, Inc.

As reflected in its title, my goal in writing this article is to share with my colleagues in community psychology my reflections about the field and the challenges that it confronts. In many respects, our field has taken upon itself a task considered by many as fruitless, if not impossible. That task, however, becomes increasingly important as the needs of those residing in many communities become ever more urgent. I understand that these reflections do not represent either popular or widely held views. Hopefully, those interested in the economic, sociopolitical, and psychological reality of what are defined as communities in Latin America will appreciate the salience of my comments regarding how we apply our expertise in interventions, in theory, and in research methods.

Readers will note that I have not focused my comments on my country, Cuba. I base this decision on several factors. First, I believe community psychology in Cuba has (to paraphrase the old saying) a long past but a short history. In stating this, I am distinguishing clearly between what the field can be, and what it has been, in Cuba. In some respects, the Cuban Revolution represented a community effort, that is, a sociopolitical

Music Helps: Community Music Therapy in Action and Reflection Brynjulf Stige, 2017-07-05 This book explores how people may use music in ways that are helpful for them especially in relation to a sense of wellbeing belonging and participation The central premise for the study is that help is not a decontextualized effect that music produces The book contributes to the current discourse on music culture and society and it is developed in dialogue with related areas of study such as music sociology ethnomusicology community psychology and health promotion Where Music Helps describes the emerging movement that has been labelled Community Music Therapy and it presents ethnographically informed case studies of eight music projects localized in England Israel Norway and South Africa The various chapters of the book portray music s help in action within a broad range of contexts with individuals groups and communities all of whom have been challenged by illness or disability social and cultural disadvantage or injustice Music and musicing has helped these people find their voice literally and metaphorically to be welcomed and to welcome to be accepted and to accept to be together in different and better ways to project alternative messages about themselves or their community and to connect with others beyond their immediate environment The overriding theme that is explored is how music comes to afford things in concert with its environments which may suggest a way of accounting for the role of music in music therapy without reducing music to a secondary role in relation to the therapeutic that is being just a symbol of psychological states a stimulus or a text reflecting socio cultural content

Observations on Taiwanese Society and Reflections on Life Audiobook Hong-Chin Tsai, 2024-10-01 Content introduction Every person in the world lives in society and those who are aware and use their brains will observe the society they are in and reflect on life Social observation and reflections on life are two essential aspects of being a person and dealing with life By observing society we understand it and learn how to serve society and obtain resources from it Through reflections on life we learn how to navigate life appropriately and cherish it These two aspects are interconnected The results of social observation deepen our reflections on life and the contents of our reflections on life also include insights from social observation The content of this book consists of some observations I have made about our society in my later years of life as well as some reflections on my own life It serves as a record and a self examination The general environment in which everyone finds themselves in society is quite similar but the specific circumstances and daily lifestyles vary Therefore my observations and reflections may have similarities and differences with those of the readers I hope that the similarities can be understood and appreciated by each other and the differences can serve as inspiration and motivation Reflection on Community Studies Arthur J.

International Development L. Camfield, 2014-05-29 Development researchers face many challenges in producing robust and persuasive analyses often within a short time frame This edited volume tackles these challenges head on using examples from other fields to provide practical guidance to research producers and users Service-Learning and Writing: Paving the Way for Literacy(ies) through Community Engagement Isabel Baca, 2012-11-20 Service learning and Writing Paving the Way for Literacy ies through Community Engagement discusses service learning as a teaching and learning method and its integration with writing The various authors from different disciplines and institutions present service learning as a means of having students practice writing in real world settings and they show how relationship building and partnerships between higher education and diverse communities produce benefits for all involved the students faculty administrators and the communities themselves This volume demonstrates how writing instruction and or writing practice can complement community engagement and outreach at local national and international contexts Through different cross cultural contexts and academic disciplines the various authors explore reflection assessment internalization diversity and multiple literacies and their importance when integrating service learning in higher education and community literacy Facilitating

Community Research for Social Change Casey Burkholder, Funké Aladejebi, Joshua Schwab-Cartas, 2022-03-31 Facilitating Community Research for Social Change asks what does ethical research facilitation look like in projects that seek to move toward social change How can scholars weave political and social justice through multiple levels of the research process This edited collection presents chapters that investigate research facilitation in ways that specifically attempt to disrupt and challenge anti Indigenous and anti Black racism ableism homophobia transphobia patriarchy and sexism to work toward social change It also explores what it means to develop facilitation practices across multiple contexts and research settings including specific facilitation methods considered by researchers working with visual and community based methods with Black Indigenous and racialized communities The complexities of how scholars negotiate decisions within their research with people and communities have an effect not only on how researchers construct their participants and communities but also on the overall purpose of projects the ways their projects are shared and disseminated and what is learned in the doing of facilitation This book will be of great interest to both emerging and established researchers working within the social sciences It specifically attends to diverse fields within the social sciences that include health media studies environmental studies social work sociology education participatory visual research methodologies as well as the evolving field of digital humanities Community Research for Participation Goodson, Lisa, Phillimore, Jenny, 2012-07-18 Presenting the latest thinking in the field this book bridges a major gap in knowledge by considering both theoretical and practical issues relating to community research methodologies Feminist Community Research Gillian Creese, Wendy Frisby, 2011-10-20

Feminist community research is a collaborative methodology that holds the promise of building a more just society But in the absence of critical analysis and responsible use of power the approach can lead to naive or harmful practices This interdisciplinary volume acknowledges the challenges that researchers can encounter and discusses strategies that have been employed to overcome them By sharing collective wisdom gained from research among diverse groups from immigrant and Aboriginal women in Vancouver to poverty reduction practitioners in Vietnam this book will help researchers and government agencies build better bridges between research institutions and communities Inside the Whale Colin Bell, S. Encel, 2016-06-06

Inside the Whale Ten Personal Accounts of Social Research reflects on the preoccupations of social research More specifically this book challenges the ways in which social research is normally written up published and taught It shows that social research is a social and political activity rather than a set of techniques to be applied to the world out there It thus places greater emphasis on social and political concerns over techniques This book consists of 10 chapters and begins by explaining the metaphor of the whale coined by Henry Miller to denote withdrawal from society and used by George Orwell to imply that the whale is society and that we should spy out the interior It then considers the nature of science and sociology as well as the fundamental nature of society The following chapters explore the issues raised by power force and violence proposed reforms for some housing and banking processes in Australia social research consultancies in the 1970s research on women academics and postgraduate research Other chapters describe the ethos and the milieu of social research including a fieldwork on Australian aborigines This monograph will be of interest to sociologists social scientists and social researchers
