children's and adults' lives. She is the author of several books including the first edition of The Language of Art and co-author of Rethinking Early Childhood Education. The School I'd Like Catherine Burke, Ian Grosvenor, 2003-12-08. In 2001 The Guardian launched a competition called The School I'd Like in which young people were asked to imagine their ideal school. This vibrant groundbreaking book presents material drawn from that competition offering a unique snapshot of perceptions of today's schools by those who matter most: the pupils. The book is wonderfully illuminated by children's essays, stories, poems, pictures, and plans. Placing their views in the centre of the debate, it provides an evaluation of the democratic processes involved in teaching and learning by identifying consistencies in children's expressions of how they wish to learn, highlighting particular sites of dissonance in the education system today, illustrating how the built environment is experienced by today's children, posing questions about the reconstruction of teaching and learning for the twenty-first century. This book offers a powerful new perspective on school reform and is essential reading for all those involved in education and childhood studies, including teachers, advisors, policy makers, academics, and anyone who believes that children's voices should not be ignored. Flows, Rhythms, and Intensities of Early Childhood Education Curriculum Veronica Pacini-Ketchabaw, 2010. In this book a group of researchers and educators consider in detail the possibilities and tensions of curriculum making in early childhood education. The book discusses a wide range of issues related to postfoundational approaches to curriculum, such as the images of children and educators, pedagogical narrations, reflective practice, transitions and routines, the visual arts, social change, and family/educator involvement in the classroom.
