The Handbook of Sustainable Refurbishment: Non-Domestic Buildings Baker Nick,2009-09-02 The refurbishment of existing buildings is a crucial yet often neglected subject within sustainable architecture attention is usually focused on new buildings Many old buildings waste large amounts of energy and provide poor internal conditions for occupants through poor lighting poor ventilation solar penetration and glare and poor control of heating and cooling Demolition is an option but the refurbishment alternative is increasingly seen as more sustainable in terms of architectural value materials use neighbourhood disruption and waste disposal In addition the potential impact of low energy refurbishment is much greater than that for new build since there are many more buildings already in existence than will be built in the next 10 20 years the period over which many CO2 emission targets apply The Handbook of Sustainable Refurbishment Non Domestic Buildings offers architects engineers and a wide range of building professionals practical advice illustrated by real examples It moves from principles of sustainable refurbishment to specific design and engineering guidance for a variety of circumstances It emphasises the need for an integrated approach by showing how refurbishment measures interact with one another and with the occupants and how performance is ultimately influenced by this interaction

Sustainable Retrofitting of Commercial Buildings Richard Hyde, Nathan Groenhout, Francis Barram, Ken Yeang, 2015-01-28 Despite recent improvements in energy efficiency being made in new build it is important that the existing commercial building sector also take action to meet emission reduction targets The objectives and challenges of such action will reduce the risk of the sector becoming obsolete due to high energy use and poor environmental performance This book presents a theory based practice support methodology to deal with sustainable retrofitting opportunities for existing commercial buildings in warm climates using bioclimatic design as the basis The book has four main parts focusing on eco design and renovation bioclimatic retrofitting technological and behavioural change and case studies of retrofitting exemplars In the first part the context of climate change effects on design and renovation at the city scale is discussed The second part looks at bioclimatic retrofitting as a design guide for existing buildings highlighting the significance of architectural design and engineering systems for energy performance The technological and behavioural contexts of the existing building sector policies modelling monitoring and trend analysis in respect to energy and environmental performance are covered in part three The final part gives some case studies showing the effectiveness of strategies suggested for effective environmental performance This book is a must have guide for all involved in the design and engineering of retrofitting projects in warm climates

The Sustainable Renovation of Buildings and Neighbourhoods Pilar Mercader-Moyano, 2015-05-20 The Sustainable Renovation of Buildings and Neighborhoods is a collection of papers presented at the International Congress of Sustainable Construction and Eco efficient Solutions This event has established itself as a forum for meeting academics from around the world researchers and professionals of the construction sector in which environmental information is shared with a multidisciplinary context and which involves participants from different areas of the construction process The congress brings together development proposals through a shared vision of environmental sustainability and presents alternative solutions to problems through

The Handbook of Sustainable Refurbishment Nick V. Baker, 2009 The refurbishment of existing buildings is a neglected subject within sustainable architecture attention is usually focused on new buildings Old buildings can use large amounts of energy and provide poor internal conditions for occupants They may have high heating demand poor lighting poor ventilation solar penetration and glare and poor control of heating and cooling Demolition is an option but the alternative of refurbishment is starting to be seen as more sustainable in terms of architectural value materials use neighborhood disruption and waste disposal Building new is more carbon intensive and carries many wider environmental impacts In addition the potential impact of low energy refurbishment is much greater than that for new build since there are many more existing buildings than will be built in the next 10 20 years the period over which many CO2 emission targets apply

, Economics of Property Management: The Building as a Means of Production Herman Tempelmans Plat, Frank Heynick, 2012-06-25 The economic analysis of a building is a complex subject and traditionally it has focused on a single aspect of the structure or a single part of the construction process Dr Tempelmans Plat is a leading proponent of a new methodology which focuses on the building as a stock of services to be supplied over a long lifespan This method is more realistic since it takes into account the changes in use and the adaptation of the building over its life This book will be the first to make this method comprehensible to a wide audience of postgraduate students and professionals in the field of construction economics
