and Economic Security in Old Age focuses on the economic and social implications of aging at the level of the individual and of society as a whole. The product of a three year research program, the book contains chapters by recognized experts in the fields of economics and econometrics, sociology, social work, medicine, epidemiology, gerontology and nursing. The book first looks at some basic demographic issues including the definition of old, the changing age distribution of the population and the demographic outlook for the next several decades. It then moves into the area of family relations, health and economic security. The concept of independence among the elderly is examined and the degree of preparedness for old age by different elderly or soon to be elderly cohorts is considered. The measurable social contributions of the elderly are also discussed in juxtaposition with the benefits they receive. The book continues with an examination of the saving behaviour of the elderly, the appropriateness of the Consumer Price Index as a measure of inflation, the incomes of older women and how the tax transfer system affects the incentives of Canadians to save for retirement. Comprehensive and innovative in its consideration of the issues and implications of aging, this book will be a valuable resource for specialists and non specialists interested in issues of population aging, for students of gerontology, economics, sociology, health studies, social work and women's studies and for social planners and policy makers.

Successful Aging Martin Bloom, Waldo C. Klein, 2013-12-01

There is a near universal folk saying that everyone wishes to live a good long life but no one wishes for old age More contemporarily the rock and roll band Little Feat sang You know that you're over the hill when your mind's making promises your body can't fill This book is about the good long life It is a book about primary prevention strategies in the aging process it is not about preventing that process It is not about being old Instead it is about the things that individuals and the helping professionals who provide them with counsel and assistance can do to prevent the preventable problems of advancing age and to better manage those changes in functioning that cannot be prevented In short it is about extending all our capacities to the fullest so that we can better keep all those promises that we make to ourselves and others Aging is a life long process We focus here on the changes that are taking place in our selves and in our society as we age In particular we focus on what we can do to affect these changes by the choices we make and how we live This book offers primary prevention strategies for mature and older adults with the recognition that mature adulthood starts as soon as we are old enough to truly appreciate our active role in our own aging processes
