Lyric Lyric:

Lyric Generations G. Gabrielle Starr, 2015-11-01 Eighteenth century British literary history was long characterized by two central and seemingly discrete movements the emergence of the novel and the development of Romantic lyric poetry In fact recent scholarship reveals that these genres are inextricably bound constructions of interiority developed in novels changed ideas about what literature could mean and do encouraging the new focus on private experience and self perception developed in lyric poetry In Lyric Generations Gabrielle Starr rejects the genealogy of lyric poetry in which Romantic poets are thought to have built solely and directly upon the works of Chaucer Spenser Shakespeare and Milton She argues instead that novelists such as Richardson Haywood Behn and others while drawing upon earlier lyric conventions ushered in a new language of self expression and community which profoundly affected the aesthetic goals of lyric poets Examining the works of Cowper Smith Wordsworth Coleridge and Keats in light of their competitive dialogue with the novel Starr advances a literary history that considers formal characteristics as products of historical change In a world increasingly defined by prose poets adapted the new forms characters and moral themes of the novel in order to reinvigorate poetic practice

Rethinking Lyric Communities Irene Fantappiè, Francesco Giusti, Laura Scuriatti, 2024-10-28 In contemporary Western societies lyric poetry is often considered an elitist or solipsistic literary genre Yet a closer look at its history reveals that lyric has always been intertwined with the politics of community formation from the imagining of national and transnational discursive communities to the use of poetry in episodes of collective action protest and social resistance Poetic forms have circulated between languages and traditions from around the world and across time But how does lyric poetry address or even create communities and of what kinds This volume takes a global perspective to investigate poetic communities in dialogue with recent developments in lyric theory and concepts of community In doing so it explores both the political

What Kind of a Thing Is a Middle English Lyric? Cristina Maria Cervone,Nicholas Watson,2022-08-30 What Kind of a Thing Is a Middle English Lyric considers issues pertaining to a corpus of several hundred short poems written in Middle English between the twelfth and early fifteenth centuries The chapters draw on perspectives from varied disciplines including literary criticism musicology art history and cognitive science Since the early 1900s the poems have been categorized as lyrics the term now used for most kinds of short poetry yet neither the difficulties nor the promise of this treatment have received enough attention In one way the book argues considering these poems to be lyrics obscures much of what is interesting about them Since the nineteenth century lyrics have been thought of as subjective and best read without reference to cultural context yet nonetheless they are taken to form a distinct literary tradition Since Middle English short poems are often communal and usually spoken sung and or danced this lyric template is not a good fit In another way however the very differences between these poems and the later ones on which current debates about the lyric still focus suggest they have much to offer those debates and vice versa As its title suggests this book thus goes back to the basics asking fundamental questions about what these poems are how they function formally and culturally how they are and are not related to other bodies of short poetry and how they might illuminate and be illuminated by contemporary lyric scholarship Eleven chapters by medievalists and two responses by modernists all in careful conversation with one another reflect on these questions and suggest very different answers The editors introduction synthesizes these answers by suggesting that these poems can most usefully be read as a kind of play in several senses of that word The book ends with eight new Middle English lyrics by seven contemporary poets Goethe's Lyric Poems in English Translation Prior to 1800 Lucretia Van Tuyl Simmons,1919 Lyrics on Several Occasions Ira Gershwin,1997 One of the most distinguished lyric writers of his time Ira Gershwin wrote for his brother George as well as Jerome Kern Kurt Weill Harold Arlen and others Limelight presents a selection of stage and screen lyrics written for sundry situations and now arranged in arbitrary
