Marianne Williamson, 2008-01-01 As seen on OWN's Super Soul Sunday The need for change as we get older an emotional pressure for one phase of our lives to transition into another is a human phenomenon neither male nor female There simply comes a time in our lives not fundamentally different from the way puberty separates childhood from adulthood when it's time for one part of ourselves to die and for something new to be born The purpose of this book by best selling author and lecturer Marianne Williamson is to psychologically and spiritually reframe this transition so that it leads to a wonderful sense of joy and awakening In our ability to rethink our lives lies our greatest power to change them What we have called middle age need not be seen as a turning point toward death It can be viewed as a magical turning point toward life as we've never known it if we allow ourselves the power of an independent imagination utilizing thought forms that don't simply flow in a

perfunctory manner from ancient assumptions handed down to us but rather flower into new archetypal images of a humanity just getting started at 45 or 50 What we've learned by that time from both our failures as well as our successes tends to have humbled us into purity When we were young we had energy but were clueless about what to do with it Today we have less energy perhaps but we have far more understanding of what each breath of life is for And now at last we have a destiny to fulfill not a destiny of a life that's simply over but rather a destiny of a life that is finally truly lived Midlife is not a crisis it's a time of rebirth It's not a time to accept your death it's a time to accept your life and to finally truly live it as you and you alone know deep in your heart it was meant to be lived

Anthologies of British Poetry, 2021-11-22 From Tottel's Miscellany 1557 to the last twentieth century Oxford Book of English Verse 1999 anthologies have been a prime institution for the preservation and mediation of poetry The importance of anthologies for creating and re creating the canon of English poetry for introducing new programmes of poetry as a record of changing poetic fashions audience tastes and reading practices or as a profitable literary commodity has often been asserted Despite its impact however the poetry anthology in itself has attracted surprisingly little critical interest in Britain or elsewhere in the English speaking world This volume is the first publication to explore the largely unmapped field of poetry anthologies in Britain Essays written from a wide range of perspectives in literary and cultural studies and the point of view of poets editors publishers and cultural institutions aim to do justice to the typological functional and historical variety with which this form of publication has manifested itself from early modern print culture to the postmodern age of the world wide web

A Selection of Religious Lyrics Douglas Gray, 1975 One of England's most remarkable contributions to medieval literature is a large body of religious lyric verse the product of a living native tradition of piety and devotional writing which was at the same time part of a common Western European Christian tradition These poems sometimes use the sophisticated literary techniques of their day but more often are anonymous simple and unaffected The best of them achieve an impressive dignity moderation and clarity and in the words of a contemporary mystic a marvellous homeliness This selection represents a large number of the more attractive and interesting lyrics and illustrates not only their own excellence but also the variety and the potentialities of the traditional types to which they belong The poems are edited from the manuscripts a number have not previously been published and are accompanied by full notes and a glossary
