Supplement London Library, Sir Charles Theodore Hagberg Wright, Christopher James Purnell, 1920 Civilization without Sexes Mary Louise Roberts, 2009-02-15 In the raucous decade following World War I newly blurred boundaries between male and female created fears among the French that theirs was becoming a civilization without sexes This new gender confusion became a central metaphor for the War's impact on French culture and led to a marked increase in public debate concerning female identity and woman's proper role Mary Louise Roberts examines how in these debates French society came to grips with the catastrophic horrors of the Great War In sources as diverse as parliamentary records newspaper articles novels medical texts writings on sexology and vocational literature Roberts discovers a central question how to come to terms with rapid economic social and cultural change and articulate a new order of social relationships She examines the role of French trauma concerning the War in legislative efforts to ban propaganda for abortion and contraception and explains anxieties about the decline of maternity by a crisis in gender relations that linked soldiery virility and paternity Through these debates Roberts locates the seeds of actual change She shows how the willingness to entertain or simply the need to condemn nontraditional gender roles created an indecisiveness over female identity that ultimately subverted even the most conservative efforts to return to traditional gender roles and irrevocably altered the social organization of gender in postwar France Mitsou, ou comment l'esprit vient aux filles Colette, 1982 The National Union Catalog, Pre-1956 Imprints Library of Congress, American Library Association.
