Mixeduse Busineb Parks:

Technology and Industrial Parks in Emerging Countries Andrés Rodríguez-Pose, Daniel Hardy, 2014-06-16 Industrial and technology parks are commonly regarded as a policy panacea They tend to be considered as the ideal instrument to alleviate an assortment of institutional political economic social and ultimately technological weaknesses and often form the centrepiece of development strategies Yet the real impact of industrial and technology parks especially in emerging countries is still poorly understood Focusing on examples from Latin America Asia Africa and the Middle East the book represents a first approach to understand the potential and reality of industrial and technology parks in emerging countries It is argued that although some parks have been successful in addressing a range of key problems including underdevelopment unemployment and a lack of investment the majority have failed to deliver rendering the promise of many parks little more than a pipedream

Roberts,2016-04-15 Bringing together a diverse team of leading scholars and professionals this book offers a variety of insights into ongoing gender mainstreaming policies in Europe with a focus on urban spatial planning Gender mainstreaming was first legislated for in the European Union with the Treaty of Amsterdam in 1999 and although many interesting developments have occurred throughout the decade that followed there is still much to do in terms of policy knowledge production dissemination and education This work contributes to all three objectives by advancing the state of knowledge as well as providing educational and professional tools in the field of gender sensitive planning in Europe The volume begins by explaining the concept of gender mainstreaming in relation to its origins in the second wave of the women's movement and critiques of planning architecture transport planning and other built environment disciplines It then provides a brief history of how gender mainstreaming was incorporated into European law before focussing on the theoretical issues and questions that surround the concept of gender mainstreaming as they relate to urban space and the planning of cities and regions including a discussion of the persistence of inequalities between the sexes in their access to urban space and services In particular the division between waged and unwaged work and its impact on the social construction of gender and of the physical built environment is considered The differences between definitions of feminism and their implications for action in planning and design are also explored paying regard to the tensions between a feminist vision of a transformation of gender relations and the requirements of gender mainstreaming to accommodate the different needs of women and men in their everyday lives in urban space Throughout the book key issues recur such as the importance of time and space in the experience of urbanism resistances to change on the part of institutions and social structures and the importance of networks Education and training also appear as common themes as do citizen participation and the structures of governance The chapters are organised into four sections concepts structures empowerment and spatial quality Contributors demonstrate a variety of approaches to the intersections of gender women cities and planning dealing with substantive and procedural issues in planning at both local and regional scales They stress the links between environmental sustainability and gender sensitive urban development The book concludes by putting forward an outlook for future action
