Citizens of Worlds Jennifer Gabrys, 2022-11-15 An unparalleled how to guide to citizen sensing practices that monitor air pollution Modern environments are awash with pollutants churning through the air from toxic gases and intensifying carbon to carcinogenic particles and novel viruses The effects on our bodies and our planet are perilous Citizens of Worlds is the first thorough study of the increasingly widespread use of digital technologies to monitor and respond to air pollution It presents practice based research on working with communities and making sensor toolkits to detect pollution while examining the political subjects relations and worlds these technologies generate Drawing on data from the Citizen Sense research group which worked with communities in the United States and the United Kingdom to develop digital sensor toolkits Jennifer Gabrys argues that citizen oriented technologies promise positive change but then collide with entrenched and inequitable power structures She asks Who or what constitutes a citizen in citizen sensing How do digital sensing technologies enable or constrain environmental citizenship Spanning three project areas this study describes collaborations to monitor air pollution from fracking infrastructure to document emissions in urban environments and to create air quality gardens As these projects show how people respond to care for and struggle to transform environmental conditions informs the political subjects and collectives they become as they strive for more breathable worlds

A Citizen's Guide to the Political Psychology of Voting David P. Redlawsk, Michael W. Habegger, 2020-04-06 In the run up to a contentious 2020 presidential election the much maligned American voter may indeed be wondering How did we get here A Citizen s Guide to the Political Psychology of Voting offers a way of thinking about how voters make decisions that provides both hope and concern In many ways voters may be able to effectively process vast amounts of information in order to decide which candidates to vote for in concert with their ideas values and priorities But human limitations in information processing must give us pause While we all might think we want to be rational information processors political psychologists recognize that most of the time we do not have the time or the motivation to do so The question is can voters do a good enough job even if they fail to account for everything during the campaign Evidence suggests that they can but it isn t easy Here Redlawsk and Habegger portray a wide variety of voter styles and approaches from the most motivated and engaged to the farthest removed and disenchanted in vignettes that connect the long tradition of voter survey research to real life voting challenges

They explore how voters search for political information and make use of it in evaluating candidates and their positions. Ultimately they find that American voters are reasonably competent in making well enough informed vote choices efficiently and responsibly. For citizen voters as well as students and scholars these results should encourage regular turnout for elections now and in the future.
