Quick Eyed Love Photography And Memory:

Quick-eyed Love Susan Garrett, 2005 In her memoir Susan Garrett brings together key scenes from her girlhood in Pennsylvania during World War II with the art and craft of photography She describes living with her irascible social climbing grandmother while her mother pieced together a living taking pictures of the children of the wealthy inhabitants of the Main Line an elite suburban enclave of Philadelphia Her mother Alice Benedict was one of the few women photographers of her day a student and protégé of Alfred Stieglitz Garrett sketches the science and history of photography populating her narrative with legendary figures like Margaret Bourke White a bold contemporary of her mother and with whom Susan sensed her mother's veiled competitiveness pioneers of photography like Henri Cartier Bresson Daguerre and Fox Talbot and writers like Susan Sontag whose work ponders the meaning and ethical responsibility of taking photographs of tragic events Garrett also writes of unknown photographers and ordinary people who captured her imagination as a sensitive young girl such as the Japanese man who taught her how to dry a stack of dishes who later was sent away on a tip from her mother most likely to an internment camp

George Garrett Casey Clabough, 2013-10-01 Considering George Garrett's life and work in the continuum of American literary history it is perhaps most profitable to place him in the tradition of the now exceedingly rare Southern man of letters he or she who embraces and produces literature in all its complexity and in multiple forms novels short stories poems plays criticism translation editing and so on This kind of Southern writer stretching back to Edgar Allan Poe perhaps finds its best modern examples in the Nashville based writers of the 1920s and 1930s Chronologically Garrett born in 1929 probably was the most variously gifted Southern writer to arrive on the scene following Robert Penn Warren Indeed it is in such company that his life and work belong
