Ecological Restoration of Aquatic and Semi-Aquatic Ecosystems in the Netherlands (NW Europe) Piet H. Nienhuis, Ramesh D. Gulati, 2002-11-30 This work presents the state of the art of aquatic and semi aquatic ecological restoration projects in The Netherlands Starting from the conceptual basis of restoration ecology the successes and failures of hundreds of restoration projects are described Numerous successful projects are mentioned In general ecological restoration endeavours greatly benefit from the progressive experience achieved in the course of the years Failures mainly occur through insufficient application of physical chemical or ecological principles Spontaneous colonization by plants and animals following habitat reconstruction is preferred However sometimes the re introduction of keystone species e g eelgrass salmon beaver is necessary in case the potential habitats are isolated or fragmented or if a seed bank is lacking thus not allowing viable populations to develop Re introducing traditional management techniques e g mowing without fertilization low intensity grazing is important to rehabilitate the semi natural and cultural landscapes that are so characteristic for The Netherlands

Restoration of Puget Sound Rivers David R. Montgomery, Susan Bolton, Derek B. Booth, Leslie Wall, 2015-12-31 The recent listing of Pacific salmon under the Endangered Species Act has led to substantial interest in the scientific basis for river restoration in the Pacific Northwest Millions of dollars in state and federal funding have been programmed for habitat restoration efforts to stem the decline of salmon populations in the region This volume addresses the need for a solid understanding of fluvial processes and aquatic ecology in order to predict both river and salmonid response to restoration projects In the Pacific Northwest as in most regions of the United States we are still learning about the processes that create habitat and river structure how those processes influence aquatic ecosystems and how to gauge the response of river systems to both land use changes and restoration efforts River systems are still responding to historic changes and degraded habitat may not be restored successfully if natural conditions are not well understood particularly if massive changes in watershed hydrology or other processes are the root cause These issues faced in the development of regional river restoration programs are by no means unique to the Northwest and so the initiation of a regional program of river restoration provides an opportunity to evaluate the state of river restoration in general The eighteen chapters of Restoration of Puget Sound Rivers presented by the region's experts at a symposium of the Society for Ecological Restoration examine geological and geomorphological controls on river and stream characteristics and dynamics biological aspects of river systems in the region and the application of fluvial geomorphology civil engineering riparian ecology and aquatic ecology in efforts to restore Puget Sound Rivers This volume will be of interest to geomorphologists aquatic biologists civil engineers planners and all those interested in the interface of science and policy in addressing one of the fundamental environmental challenges of the twenty first century Aquatic Ecosystems T. conservation Bennett, A.; Coates, D.; Gondwe, E.; Shrestha, R.; Valbo-Jørgensen, J., Two important imbalances in the dialogue on ecosystem restoration are addressed First the over focus on ecological objectives as the entry point Second the under recognition of the importance of and opportunities for restoration of inland aquatic ecosystems Most current general forums literature and guidelines on ecosystem restoration emphasise ecological approaches and or outcomes for nature Human well being and more rarely livelihoods benefits are often implied but not always central The approach here does so adopting a people centred approach that addresses the objectives of livelihoods poverty reduction and food and nutrition security Ecological outcomes are seen as a tool to achieve this end and co benefit of it The approach significantly changes how ecosystem restoration is assessed planned implemented monitored and funded trade offs among winners and losers become more transparent and central local knowledge is prioritised over scientific technical approaches and local communities are placed central to the design and implementation of interventions Apart from human rights justice and equity considerations and alignment with development goals and priorities a people centred approach with a focus on livelihoods poverty and food security is more likely to deliver sustainable outcomes including for biodiversity particularly where local communities are empowered to manage the direct use of these ecosystems for livelihoods benefits The guidance provides only a brief introduction to the topic through a set of principles relevant conceptual frameworks a theory of change and key considerations in designing an ecosystem restoration programme or project The intention is where necessary to shift the policy approach and how practitioners use associated guidance on relevant topics Throughout examples from inland aquatic ecosystems in developing countries are provided to illustrate the topics Aquatic ecosystem restoration ,1997
