Paul and the Miraculous Graham H. Twelftree,2013-09-15 How can we explain the difference between the miraculous Christianity expressed in the Gospels and the nearly miracle free Christianity of Paul In this historically informed study senior New Testament scholar Graham Twelftree challenges the view that Paul was primarily a thinker and reimagines him as an apostle of Jesus for whom the miraculous was of profound importance Highlighting often overlooked material in Paul s letters Twelftree offers a fresh consideration of what the life and work of Paul might teach us about miracles in early Christianity and sheds light on how early Christians lived out their faith Cyclopædia of English Literature Robert Chambers,1847

Midrash and Lection in Matthew M.D. Goulder,2004-09-16 This challenging and original book questions the accepted conclusions of synoptic research It argues first that Matthew is an adaptation and expansion of Mark by midrash that is by standard Jewish expository techniques depending on no written source other than Mark and only to a very small extent on oral tradition and secondly that Matthew was written to be read in Christian worship round the year as a cycle of lessons following the Jewish festal lectionary Part I establishes the characteristics of the Matthaean manner his vocabulary his rhythms and images the form and mode of his parables With so much typical of Matthew as a gospel sources other than Mark become progressively less plausible Part II is a commentary on the gospel from this base It finds a basic Marcan text for each new unit and a reason for its development and works out in detail the correspondence between the five teaching sections of Matthew and the five Jewish festal seasons of Pentecost New Year Atonement Tabernacles Dedication and Passover A striking piece of corroborative evidence is found in the section numbers of the old Greek manuscript tradition Michael Goulder believes that lectionary schemes also underlie Mark and Luke and that at least one major part of the Old Testament the work of the Chronicler has a similar character A gospel in fact is not a literary genre at all but a liturgical one Matthew himself comes into focus as a converted Jewish scribe who possessed the substance of the Pauline teaching and who has been the dominant influence in forming the Church s image of Jesus in his adaptation of Mark by midrash and through lection Journal of Theological Studies ,1920 The Works of Robert G.
