Vocational Division Bulletin United States. Division of Vocational Education, 1944

Fitting and Selling Shoes John Appleton Beaumont, 1945

The School-to-Prison Pipeline Peter Thalheim, 2022-05-02 The school to prison pipeline is not what it is popularly advertised to be by the major media whereby the installation of safety officers and security personnel in schools to protect the learning environment for all the students leads to mostly young men of color getting a record for disruptive behavior and being channeled into prison as the logical result of attending K 12 public schools Rather the school to prison pipeline is a conduit opened and maintained by the states those who promote the state before the citizen to keep as many students as possible in the public school monopoly so that the two leading teacher unions the National Education Association and the American Federation of Teachers maintain as many dues paying members as possible and to increase the number of dues payers regardless of its impact on our children The promoters of the school to prison pipeline deny African American Hispanic Asian white and other students of color from high needs socioeconomic backgrounds a choice of where to go to school If these parents or guardians want their children to go to a public charter or to use a voucher to select another private option that is where the inquiry should end the simple choice by their parents and guardians Instead the state wins by keeping more people in the state run pipeline The public unions win by keeping more unionized school staff and keeping the dues gravy train coming in to support unions who in turn use their political strength to help elect candidates who favor unionized public schools versus school choice for our children and young people How do the children win if their education options are artificially restricted The students lose by being blocked in sometimes failing public schools with no viable choice to go elsewhere And the poorer you are the fewer choices you generally have This denial of school choice would particularly impact black students as blacks have disproportionately less money than the average American

Explanatory Item Response Models Paul de Boeck, 2004-06-29 This edited volume gives a new and integrated introduction to item response models predominantly used in measurement applications in psychology education and other social science areas from the viewpoint of the statistical theory of generalized linear and nonlinear mixed models The new framework allows the domain of item response models to be co ordinated and broadened to emphasize their explanatory uses beyond their standard descriptive uses The basic explanatory principle is that item responses can be modeled as a function of predictors of various kinds The predictors can be a characteristics of items of persons and of combinations of persons and items b observed or latent of either items or persons and they can be c latent continuous or latent categorical In this way a broad range of models is generated including a wide range of extant item response models as well as some new ones Within this range models with explanatory predictors are given special attention in this book but we also discuss descriptive models Note that the term item responses does not just refer to the traditional test data but are broadly conceived as categorical data from a repeated observations design Hence data from studies with repeated observations experimental designs or with longitudinal designs may also be modelled The book starts with a four chapter section containing an introduction to the framework The remaining chapters describe models for ordered category data multilevel models models for differential item functioning multidimensional models models for local item dependency and mixture models It also includes a chapter on the statistical background and one on useful software In order to make the task easier for the reader a unified approach to notation and model description is followed throughout the chapters and a single data set is used in most examples to make it easier to see how the many models are related For all major examples computer commands from the SAS package are provided that can be used to estimate the results for each model In addition sample commands are provided for other major computer packages Paul De Boeck is Professor of Psychology at K U Leuven Belgium and Mark Wilson is Professor of Education at UC Berkeley USA They are also co editors along with Pamela Moss of a new journal entitled Measurement Interdisciplinary Research and Perspectives The chapter authors are members of a collaborative group of psychometricians and statisticians centered on K U Leuven and UC Berkeley

Strong States, Weak Schools

Bruce Fuller, Emily Hannum, Melissa K. Henne, 2008-06-30 Why are governments pushing to centrally regulate teaching and learning at this historical moment Do these accountability mechanisms succeed in boosting student achievement How are teachers responding to top down rules incentives and the recasting of what knowledge counts inside school This book answers these questions Studies on the educational quality of schools Manfred Prenzel, The priority program The educational quality of schools has been established seven years ago by the German Research Foundation DFG The projects in this program investigated conditions inside and outside of school and their impact on the development of mathematical scientific and cross curricular competencies In this book major findings of the program are presented The projects not only give an overview of their research questioning methods and findings but also of approaches and materials that have been developed to support learning and teaching in mathematics and science class rooms The studies reported here identify factors for weaknesses in the educational outcomes that became apparent in the international comparisons like TIMSS and PISA The projects however provide empirically substantiated units on approaches that can help to improve the educational quality of schools Publisher ed
