The Late American Novel Jeff Martin, C. Max Magee, 2011-03-01 Scholars journalists and publishers have turned their brains inside out in the effort to predict what lies ahead but who better to comment on the future of the book than those who are driven to write them The way we absorb information has changed dramatically Edison's phonograph has been reincarnated as the iPod Celluloid went digital But books for the most part have remained the same until now And while music and movies have undergone an almost Darwinian evolution the literary world now faces a revolution a sudden change in the way we buy produce and read books In The Late American Novel Jeff Martin and C Max Magee gather some of today s finest writers to consider the sea change that is upon them Lauren Groff imagines an array of fantastical futures for writers from poets with groupies to novelists as vending machines Rivka Galchen writes about the figurative and literal death of paper Joe Meno expounds upon the idea of a book as a place set permanently aside for the imagination regardless of format These and other original essays by Reif Larsen Benjamin Kunkel Victoria Patterson and many more provide a timely and much needed commentary on this compelling cultural crossroad The Digital Banal

Anglo-American Hispanists and the Spanish Civil War S. Faber, 2008-08-04 In this book Faber assesses the long term impact of the Spanish Civil War on Hispanic Studies as an academic field in the United States and Great Britain Combining institutional history with biography the book gives a compelling account of the dilemmas that the war posed for four Hispanists who turned their love of Spain into their life's work Granta 126 Sigrid Rausing, 2014-01-23 We are what we remember and even when we invent we write what we remember Every line is a fragment of something else that is the great collective project that we call culture In this issue of Granta writers remember or invent scenes from their own lives and the lives of others Ann Beattie Fiona Benson Andrew Brown Bernard Cooper Lydia Davis David Gates Arcelis Girmay Laura Kasischke Olivia Laing Colin McAdam Lorrie Moore Norman Rush Johnny Steinberg Nathan Thornburgh Marta Werner Edmund White Joy Williams Introducing Katherine Fawcett Morris Photography Brigitte Grignat Yuri Kozyrev Collages Janet Malcolm The New Leader, 1997 Hit and Run Doug Johnstone, 2012-02-28 Driving home from a party with his girlfriend and brother all of them drunk and high on stolen pills Billy Blackmore accidentally hits someone in the night In a panic they all decide to drive off But the next day Billy wakes to find he has to cover the story for the local paper It turns out the dead man was Edinburgh's biggest crime lord and as Billy struggles with what he's done he is sucked into a nightmare of guilt retribution and violence From the author of the acclaimed Smokeheads Hit Run is another pitch black psychological thriller More Baths Less Talking Nick Hornby, 2012-08-21 Read what you enjoy not what bores you Nick Hornby tells us That simple liberating and indispensable directive animates each installment of the celebrated critic and author's monthly column in the Believer In this delightful and never musty tour of his reading life Hornby tells us not just what to read but how to read Whether tackling a dismayingly bulky biography of Dickens while his children destroy something in the next room or getting sucked into a serious assessment of Celine Dion during an intensely fought soccer match featuring his beloved Arsenal or devouring an entire series of children's books while on vacation Hornby's reviews are rich, witty, and occasionally madcap. These essays capture the joy and ire, the despair and exhilaration of the book lover's life and will appeal equally to both monocle-wearing salonnières and people like him who spend a lot of time thinking about Miley Cyrus's next role.

Jernigan David Gates, 2010-09-29 From Holden Caulfield to Moses Herzog, our best literature has been narrated by malcontents. To this lineage add Peter Jernigan, who views the world with ferocious intelligence, grim rapture, and a chainsaw wit that he turns with disastrous consequences on his wife, his teenaged son, his dangerously vulnerable mistress, and not least of all on himself. This novel is a bravura performance, a funny, scary, mesmerizing study of a man walking off the edge with his eyes wide open, wisecracking all the way.

White Diaspora Catherine Jurca, 2011-11-28 This is the first book to analyze our suburban literary tradition. Tracing the suburb's emergence as a crucial setting and subject of the twentieth-century American novel, Catherine Jurca identifies a decidedly masculine obsession with the suburban home and a preoccupation with its alternative: the experience of spiritual and emotional dislocation that she terms homelessness. In the process, she challenges representations of white suburbia as prostrated by its own privileges. In novels as disparate as Tarzan (written by Tarzana, California real estate developer Edgar Rice Burroughs), Native Son (by Richard Wright), and recent fiction by John Updike and Richard Ford, Jurca finds an emphasis on the suburb under siege, a place where the fortunate tend to see themselves as powerless. From Babbitt to Rabbit, the suburban novel casts property owners living in communities of their choosing as dispossessed people. Material advantages become artifacts of oppression, and affluence is fraudulently identified as impoverishment. The fantasy of victimization reimagines white flight as a white diaspora. Extending innovative trends in the study of nineteenth-century American culture, Jurca's analysis suggests that self-pity has played a constitutive role in white middle-class identity in the twentieth century. It breaks new ground in literary history and cultural studies while telling the story of one of our most revered and reviled locations: the little suburban house at number one million and ten Volstead Avenue that Edith Wharton warned would ruin American life and letters.
