Mistress Branican:

Mistress Branican Jules Verne, 1984 A book from the pen of Jules Verne is its own best advertisement Mistress Branican shows no falling off in the author's imaginative faculties or vivacity This is the first of his books in which a woman has been made the central figure Perhaps the flying trips around the world made by Miss Bisland and Nelly Bly gave him the idea At any rate it is a good one Mistress Branican however traveled with a caravan and not with a small hand bag The adventures of this lady on her travels are thrilling and humorous at the same time and the whole is told with that air of sincerity which is peculiar to the romances of Jules Verne Mistress Branican Jules Verne, 1891 Mistress Branican (with Over 80 Illustrations) Jules Verne, 2017-10-30 MISTRESS BRANICAN with over 80 illustrations The Voyages extraordinaires Book 36 Mistress Branican French Mistress Branican 1891 is an adventure novel written by Jules Verne There are two chances of never again seeing the friends we part with when starting on a long voyage those we leave may not be here on our return and those who go may never come back But little heed of these eventualities was taken by the sailors who were preparing for departure on board the Franklin in the morning of the 15th of March 1875 On that day the Franklin Captain John Branican was about to quit the port of San Diego in California on a voyage across the Northern Pacific A fine vessel of nine hundred tons was this Franklin a barquentine fully canvased with gaff sails jibs and staysails and with topmast and top gallant mast on the fore Mistress Branican Jules Verne, 2016-06-23 Mistress Branican (Classic Reprint) Jules Verne, 2015-08-05 Excerpt from Mistress Branican The Franklin was so well built and efficiently commanded that not a man of her crew would have shipped on another vessel even with the assurance of obtaining higher pay All were preparing to start content in their double confidence in a good ship and a good captain The Franklin was to make her first voyage on behalf of William H Andrew and Co of San Diego She was bound to Calcutta by way of Singapore with a cargo of American goods to return with Indian products to one of the Californian ports Captain John Branican was a young man of nine and twenty with an attractive but resolute face his features telling of unusual energy he possessed in the highest degree that moral courage so superior to physical courage that two o'clock in the morning courage as Napoleon called it that is to say the kind that faces the unexpected and is ready for action at any moment His head had more character than beauty with his rough hair his eyes animated with a keen frank look which flashed like a dart from their black pupils It would be difficult to imagine a man of his age more robust in body or constitution That was clear enough in the vigour of his handshakings which indicated the ardour of his blood and the strength of his muscles But what we have particularly to note is that the spirit contained in this body of iron was a good and noble spirit ready to sacrifice its life for its kind John Branican was of the character of those rescuers whose coolness enables them to perform heroic acts without hesitation He had given proof of this early in life One day among the broken ice of the bay on a capsized boat he had saved children like himself and later on he had not belied the instincts of self sacrifice which had marked his youth A few years after John Branican had lost his father and his mother he had married
