based research of Gestalt psychologists in Berlin as well as psychologists in the orbit of Karl and Charlotte Bühler in Vienna in the first decades of the twentieth century. Most of these figures along with many other Central European scholars of this era were driven into exile in the United States after the rise of National Socialism in the 1930s. This scientific migration led to the cross pollination of communication studies in America, an outcome visible in the leading project in interaction research of the mid twentieth century, the Natural History of an Interview. The following two chapters examine this project in its historical context. The volume closes with a critical edition of a treasure from the archives: the transcript of a speech delivered by Ray Birdwhistell, a key participant in the Natural History of an Interview project and founder of kinesics.
