Recognitions Enrico Botta, Gianna Fusco, Pilar Martínez Benedí, Anna Scannavini, 2024-11-04 This volume offers a critical exploration of the many ways in which transcodification acts at the intersection of literature art history and social and cultural artifacts to foster instances of recognition in the US Recognition covers a wealth of meanings from the mere acknowledgement of existence validity or legality or appreciation of something as valuable to the identification of something as known or familiar Accordingly this volume deals with different struggles for recognition One focus of the volume is the assessment of artistic achievement in relation to a so called original with essays concerned with cultural codes and with the role that translation adaptation and cross cultural encounters have played in US artistic and literary productions A second parallel strand focuses on the fight for political and social inclusion or on the dynamics beneath the recognition of group and gender identities to explore how activism and artistic literary productions challenge received identity boundaries and accepted social and cultural hierarchies Bringing together recognition and transcodification transculturality the book deconstructs crystalized and codified categories and celebrates the crossing of boundaries

Envisioning Black Feminist Voodoo Aesthetics Kameelah L. Martin, 2016-09-30 In the twenty first century American popular culture increasingly makes visible the performance of African spirituality by black women Disney s Princess and the Frog and Pirates of the Caribbean franchise are two notable examples The reliance on the black priestess of African derived religion as an archetype however has a much longer history steeped in the colonial othering of Haitian Vodou and American imperialist fantasies about so called black magic Within this cinematic study Martin unravels how religious autonomy impacts the identity function and perception of Africana women in the American popular imagination Martin interrogates seventy five years of American film representations of black women engaged in conjure hoodoo obeah or Voodoo to discern what happens when race gender and African spirituality collide She develops the framework of Voodoo aesthetics or the inscription of African cosmologies on the black female body as the theoretical lens through which to scrutinize black female religious performance in film Martin places the genre of film in conversation with black feminist womanist criticism offering an interdisciplinary approach to film analysis Positioning the black priestess as another iteration of Patricia Hill Collins notion of controlling images Martin theorizes whether film functions as a safe space for a racial and gendered embodiment in the performance of African diasporic religion Approaching the close reading of eight signature films from a black female spectatorship Martin works chronologically to express the trajectory of the black priestess as cinematic motif over the last century of filmmaking Conceptually Martin recalibrates the scholarship on black women and representation by distinctly centering black women as ritual specialists and Black Atlantic spirituality on the silver screen

Teaching Women's Studies in Conservative Contexts Cantice Greene, 2016-01-13 Women's Studies is a field that inspires strong reactions both positive and negative inside and outside of the classroom The field partly due to its activist origins is often associated with liberal ideology and is therefore chided by students and others who identify as conservative The goal of this book is to introduce conservative perspectives into the issues of gender sexuality race and power that are topics of teaching and discussion in women's studies courses The book also aims to provide examples of pathways by which conservative students and scholars can engage the field of women's studies not as opponents but as contributors Contributors including administrators activists scholar teachers artists and ministers come together in this collection to engage in writing and response and to add their approaches to teaching and administering women's studies on their campuses

The Grasp That Reaches beyond the Grave Venetria K. Patton, 2013-01-01 Explores black women writers treatment of the ancestor figure The Grasp That Reaches beyond the Grave investigates the treatment of the ancestor figure in Toni Cade Bambara s The Salt Eaters Paule Marshall s Praisesong for the Widow Phyllis Alesia Perry s Stigmata and A Sunday in June Toni Morrison s Beloved Tananarive Due s The Between and Julie Dash's film Daughters of the Dust in order to understand how they draw on African cosmology and the interrelationship of ancestors, elders, and children to promote healing within the African American community. Venetria K. Patton suggests that the experience of slavery with its concomitant view of black women as natively dead has impacted African American women writers' emphasis on elders and ancestors as they seek means to counteract notions of black women as somehow disconnected from the progeny of their wombs. This misperception is in part addressed via a rich kinship system which includes the living and the dead. Patton notes an uncanny connection between depictions of elder ancestor and child figures in these texts and Kongo cosmology. These references suggest that these works are examples of Africanisms or African retentions which continue to impact African American culture.

Spirituality as Ideology in Black Women's Film and Literature

Judylyn S. Ryan, 2005. Given the ways in which spirituality functions in the work of such Black women writers and filmmakers as Toni Morrison, Ntozake Shange, Maya Angelou, Julie Dash, and Euzhan Palcy, Judylyn Ryan proposes in this challenging new study that what these women embrace in their narrative construction and characterization is the role and responsibility of the priestess bearing and distributing life force to sustain the community of people who read and view their work. Central to these women's vision of transformation is what Ryan calls a paradigm of growth and an ethos of interconnectedness which provide interpretive models for examining and teaching a broad range of artistic, cultural, and social texts. The focus on theology provides a new way of viewing the connections among New World African diaspora religious traditions, challenging the widespread and reductive assumption that Afro-Christianity shares no philosophical commonalities with Santería, Candomblé, Voodoo, and other traditions that are not Christological. In addition to exploring spirituality as epistemology, the book also provides an intertextual reading of Black women's literary and film texts that examines the ways in which these works expose, mediate, and interpret the cultural, social, and historical conditions surrounding their production. While most discussions of Black women's engagement with and contribution to the discursive space of the culture assume an oppositional or reactive stance, Ryan argues that the disposition reflected in the texts she examines tends to be relational and proactive, conferring an autonomy that the gravitational pull between opposites lacks. This intertextual reading constitutes a multimedia auteur criticism of a collective artistic vision.
