

A woman with short brown hair, wearing a white long-sleeved shirt and a blue and white patterned skirt, is sitting in a yellow chair on a balcony. She is leaning back with her arms outstretched, looking up at the sky. The balcony has a white stone railing with a decorative pattern. In the background, there is a canal with several gondolas and a large, multi-story building with many windows. The sky is blue with some clouds. In the top left corner, there is a blue circle with a white letter 'r' inside it.

Making The International:

The Making of International Law Alan Boyle, Christine Chinkin, 2007-02-22 This is a study of the principal negotiating processes and law making tools through which contemporary international law is made It does not seek to give an account of the traditional and untraditional sources and theories of international law but rather to identify the processes participants and instruments employed in the making of international law It accordingly examines some of the mechanisms and procedures whereby new rules of law are created or old rules are amended or abrogated It concentrates on the UN other international organisations diplomatic conferences codification bodies NGOs and courts Every society perceives the need to differentiate between its legal norms and other norms controlling social economic and political behaviour But unlike domestic legal systems where this distinction is typically determined by constitutional provisions the decentralised nature of the international legal system makes this a complex and contested issue Moreover contemporary international law is often the product of a subtle and evolving interplay of law making instruments both binding and non binding and of customary law and general principles Only in this broader context can the significance of so called soft law and multilateral treaties be fully appreciated An important question posed by any examination of international law making structures is the extent to which we can or should make judgments about their legitimacy and coherence and if so in what terms Put simply a law making process perceived to be illegitimate or incoherent is more likely to be an ineffective process From this perspective the assumption of law making power by the UN Security Council offers unique advantages of speed and universality but it also poses a particular challenge to the development of a more open and participatory process observable in other international law making bodies

Making International Institutions Work Ranjit Lall, 2023-02-23 This book explains why some international institutions succeed and others fail and what we can do to improve them

Developments of International Law in Treaty Making Rudiger Wolfrum, Volker Röben, 2005-03-29 The book explores the various means of making non conventional non treaty law and the cross cutting issues that they raise Law making by technical informal expert bodies Conferences of Parties international organizations the UN Security Council regional organizations and arrangements and non state actors is examined in turn This forms the basis for the analysis of the complementarity of international treaty law customary international law and non traditional law making potential subject matters of non treaty law making domestic consequences of non treaty law making proliferation of actors commissions and treaty bodies of the UN system and International courts and tribunals

Partnerships in International Policy-Making Raffaele Marchetti, 2016-10-26 This book analyzes how international organizations and the European Union engage with civil society to pursue their policy goals Multi stakeholder initiatives private public partnership sub contracting political alliances hybrid coalitions multi sectoral networks pluralist co governance and indeed foreign policy by proxy are all considered Bringing together the most advanced scholarship the book examines trade environment development security and human rights with reference to both EU and global institutional settings such as the WTO UN Climate Summits FAO IFAD ICC UNHRC UNSC and at the EU level the DG FISMA TRADE CLIMA DEVCO HOME and ECHO The book also studies the use of NGOs in the foreign policy of the EU USA and Russia This changing politics and the polarized debate it has generated are explored in detail Making and Bending International Rules Krzysztof J. Pelc, 2016-09-08 Essential for students and scholars in politics and law Pelc provides a comprehensive account of the politics of treaty flexibility Democracy in International Law-Making Salar Abbasi, 2021-12-20 This book provides a critique of current international law making and draws on a set of principles from Persian philosophers to present an alternative to influence the development of international law making procedure The work conceptualizes a substantive notion of democracy in order to regulate international law making mechanisms under a set of principles developed between the twelfth and seventeenth centuries in Persia What the author here names democratic egalitarian multilateralism is founded on the idea of egalitarian law by Suhrawardi the account of substantial motion by Mulla Sadra and the ideal of intercultural dialectical democracy developed by R m Following a discussion of the conceptual flaws of the chartered and customary sources of international law it is argued that democratic egalitarian multilateralism could be a source for a set of principles to regulate the procedures through which international treaties are made as well as a criterion for customary international law ascertainment Presenting an alternative drawn from a less dominant culture to the established ideas of international law making the book will be essential reading for researchers and academics working in public international law history of law legal theory comparative legal theory Islamic law and history International Law-Making by the International Court of Justice and International Law Commission Omri Sender, 2024-06-27 Provides an unparalleled account of the relationship between two central organs of the international legal order and its impact

Change and Stability in International Law-Making Antonio Cassese, Joseph H. H. Weiler, 2010-10-13 No detailed description available for Change and Stability in International Law Making The International Political Economy of China's Exchange Rate Policy Making Zhaohui Wang, 2021-01-21 This book examines the international political economy of China's exchange rate policy making from theoretical and empirical perspectives It identifies the limitations in the existing Economics studies on the RMB exchange rate and the research gap of the Comparative Political Economy CPE and International Political Economy IPE approaches to exchange rate politics The author develops a three level game framework for China's exchange rate policy making based on revision and synthesis of the existing CPE and IPE approaches which provides a richer portrait of the dynamism and complexity of China's exchange rate policy making The book has applied the three level game framework to empirically analyzing China's exchange rate policy making under the Hu Wen administration The book also discusses some further exploration of China's exchange rate policy in the Xi era and comparative case study of exchange rate policy making It is a timely and rigorous study on the role that international and domestic politics play in forging China's exchange rate policy making in the twenty first century Judicial Decisions in International Law

Argumentation Letizia Lo Giacco, 2022-10-20 This book explores the question of how the multiplication of judicial decisions on international law has influenced the way in which legal findings in international law adjudication are justified. International law practitioners frequently cite judicial decisions to persuade Courts interpreting international law are no exception to this practice. However, judicial decisions do much more than persuading; they enable and constrain interpretive discretion. Instead of taking the road of the sources of international law, this book turns to the somewhat uncharted terrain of legal argumentation. Using international criminal law as a case study, it shows how the growing number of judicial decisions has normalised courts resort to them in legal justification and enabled some argumentative practices to become constitutive of international law. In so doing, it critically revisits the implications of an iterative use of judicial decisions and reassesses the influence of the judicialisation turn on the ways in which the meaning of international law is formed, shaped and reshaped by reference to judicial decisions.

Making Things International 1 Mark B. Salter, 2015-05-01 Building on recent debates in critical social theory and international relations, Making Things International I: Circuits and Motion presents twenty-five essays that engage the global, the local and the international through the lens of objects. It represents the first substantial new materialist intervention in global politics and international relations, offering a diverse and provocative set of reflections on how different objects create, sustain, complicate and trouble the international. Problematising the stuff of global life, Making Things International focuses on contemporary materialist scholarship on the international realm. The first of two volumes, these original contributions by both new and established scholars examine how war, diplomacy, trade, communication and mobile populations are made by things: weapons, vehicles, shipping containers, commodities, passports and more. The authors demonstrate how mundane, everyday objects not normally understood as international are in fact deeply implicated in how we think of the world: blood, garbage, viruses, traffic lights, clocks, memes and ships' ballast. Contributors: Michele Acuto (U College London), Peter Adey (Royal Holloway U of London), Rune Saugmann Andersen (U of Helsinki), Jessica Auchter (U of Tennessee at Chattanooga), Mike Bourne (Queen's U Belfast), Kathleen P J Brennan, Elizabeth Cobbett (U of East Anglia), Stefanie Fishel (Hobart and William Smith Colleges), Emily Gilbert (U of Toronto), Jairus Grove (U of Hawai'i at Manoa), Charlie Hailey (U of Florida), John Law (Open U), Wen yuan Lin (National Tsing hua U), Oded L. L. wenheim (Hebrew U of Jerusalem), Chris Methmann, Benjamin J Muller (U of Western Ontario), Can E. Mutlu (Bilkent U), Geneviève Pich, Joseph Pugliese (Macquarie U), Katherine Reese, Michael J Shapiro (U of Hawai'i at Manoa), Benjamin Stephan, Daniel Vanderlip, William Walters (Carleton U), Melissa Autumn White (U of British Columbia), Lauren Wilcox (U of Cambridge), Yvgeny Yanovsky.

International Law-making Rain Liivoja, Jarna Petman, 2014-01-10 This book explores law making in international affairs and is compiled to celebrate the 50th birthday of Professor Jan Klabbers, a leading international law and international relations scholar who has made significant contributions to the understanding of the sources of international legal obligations and the idea of constitutionalism in international law. Inspired by Professor Klabbers' wide-ranging interests in international law and his interdisciplinary approach, the book examines law making through a variety of perspectives and seeks to break new ground in exploring what it means to think and write about law and its creation. While examining the substance of international law, these contributors raise more general concerns such as the relationship between law making and the application of law, the role and conflict between various institutions and the characteristics of the formal sources of international law. The book will be of great interest to students and academics of legal theory, international relations and international law.

Legitimacy in International Law
 Rüdiger Wolfrum, Volker Röben, 2008-02-26

In recent years the question of the legitimacy of international law has been discussed quite intensively. Such questions are, for example, whether international law lacks legitimacy in general, whether international law or a part of it has yielded to the facts of power, whether adherence to international legal commitments should be subordinated to self-defined national interests, whether international law or particular rules of it such as the prohibition of the use of armed force have lost their ability to induce compliance, and what is the relevance of non-enforcement or failure to obey for the legitimacy of that particular international norm. This book contains fresh perspectives on these questions offered at an international and interdisciplinary conference hosted by the Max Planck Institute for Comparative Law and International Law.

Making Things International 2
 Mark B. Salter, 2016-04-10

Drawing widely from contemporary social and critical thought, Making Things International 2 offers provocative interventions into debates about causality, connection and politics through the notion of assemblage. Political assemblages, especially those that cross national borders, can be catalyzed by a host of surprising sparks. Present-day global systems are complex and interdependent, but the worn tools of traditional international relations theory are unsuited to the task of understanding how objects, ideas and people come together to create, dispute, solve or perhaps cause these political configurations. Contributors to this volume bring to their work a new sensitivity toward issues of power, authority, control and sovereignty. The companion volume, Making Things International 1: Circuits and Motion, used things, stuff and objects in motion to capture the material dynamics of global politics and to demonstrate the importance of the material. This volume builds on that conversation by examining objects that incite political assemblages. Specific subjects include fighter jets, smartphones, tents, HTTP cookies, representations of North Korea and histories of the diplomatic cable, the orange prison jumpsuit and container shipping.

Law-Making in the International Community G.M. Danilenko, 2024-01-15 As the world approaches the end of the twentieth century it becomes clear that the global legal system governing relations between the members of the international community is passing through a period of profound change The traditional lawmaking techniques established largely at the beginning of this century were constituted so as to provide for only gradual reforms within a limited and homogeneous community of states Faced with a growing number of global problems the international community has discovered that the traditional legal system lacks effective procedures for rapid generation of new international legal norms Law Making in the International Community examines to what extent the transformations in the social and the legal infrastructures of the international community have affected the traditional rules determining how international law is to be made or changed By focusing on actual state practice official statements of governments and the pronouncements of the World Court this book seeks to clarify the content and significance of the existing community consensus concerning the authoritative methods of lawmaking

Decision Making Within International Organisations Bob Reinalda, Bertjan Verbeek, 2004-07-31 Following the end of the Cold War and in the context of globalization this book examines the extent to which member states dominate decision making in international organizations and whether non state actors for example non governmental organizations and multinational corporations are influential The authors assess the new patterns of decision making to determine whether they are relatively open or closed privileged networks The organizations examined include the Council of Europe the United Nations the EU G8 the World Trade Organization International Maritime Organizations the World Health Organization and the OECD

The Legitimacy of International Human Rights Regimes Andreas Føllesdal, Johan Karlsson Schaffer, Geir Ulfstein, 2013-10-24 The past sixty years have seen an expansion of international human rights conventions and supervisory organs not least in Europe While these international legal instruments have enlarged their mandate they have also faced opposition and criticism from political actors at the state level even in well functioning democracies Against the backdrop of such contestations this book brings together prominent scholars in law political philosophy and international relations in order to address the legitimacy of international human rights regimes as a theoretically challenging and politically salient case of international authority It provides a unique and thorough overview of the legitimacy problems involved in the global governance of human rights
