

Qualitative Evidence

Considerations for assessing the quality of qualitative research

Researcher Reflexivity

How do researcher identities shape the study? Did the researchers take steps to mitigate bias and assumptions? Did research methods include member checks or co-coding?

Stakeholder Involvement

How involved were relevant stakeholders (such as patients and caregivers) in defining the research question, collecting data or analyzing results?

Descriptive Richness

To what degree are methods and findings clear, credible, and complete? Is there enough information provided so that a reader could relate the findings to other contexts?

Methodology

Are study methods iterative: do the analysis and data collection inform each other? Are all variants represented in the sample? Do methods logically follow selected theories?

Clinical Relevance

Do the findings make sense based on what I know? Does this add to my knowledge base? How applicable are these findings to my clients and practice?
