New Zealand Parliament Maori Represent:

Maori and Parliament Maria Bargh, 2015 New Zealand is at a watershed in its constitutional and political arrangements. There are three events looming in the short term which suggest that the status of M ori in Parliament is in for significant challenge. The first is the impending review of constitutional issues and the M ori seats as part of the National Party M ori Party Relationship and Confidence and Supply Agreement. Secondly, the proposed referendum on the future of the mixed member proportional system MMP could also have significant implications for M ori. Finally, the longer term question of whether New Zealand should become a republic continues to haunt New Zealand's political imagination and would also necessitate lengthy debates about the place of New Zealand's constitutional arrangements in relation to M ori rights and Te Tiriti o Waitangi. M ori and Parliament provides a comprehensive and enlightening context for understanding both the historical and contemporary relationship between M ori and Parliament and highlights many of the issues which would arise in any discussion of New Zealand constitutional reform. M ori and Parliament is a collection of nineteen presentations and papers from twenty-one academics, political commentators and current and former parliamentarians and is the result of the M ori and Parliament conference held at Parliament in May 2009. Contributors include Georgina Beyer, Hon Simon Bridges, Damian Edwards, Te Ururoa Flavell, Dr Janine Hayward, Colin James, Shane Jones, Basil Keane, Hon Sir Douglas Kidd, Professor Steven Levine, Sir Ngatata Love, Hon Nanaia Mahuta, Sir Tipene O'Regan, Professor Nigel Roberts, Prof Ann Sullivan, Metiria Turei, Hon Tariana Turia, Dr Charlotte Williams, Dr John Wilson, Prof Whatarangi Winiata and Dr Maria Bargh.

Parliamentary Debates New Zealand. Parliament, 1968 Maori and Aboriginal Women in the Public Eye Karen Fox, 2011-12-01 From 1950 increasing numbers of Aboriginal and M ori women became nationally or internationally renowned. Few reached the heights of international fame accorded Evonne Goolagong or Dame Kiri Te Kanawa and few remained household names for any length of time. But their growing numbers and visibility reflected the dramatic social, cultural and political changes taking place in Australia and New Zealand in the second half of the twentieth century. This book is the first in-depth study of media portrayals of well-known Indigenous women in Australia and New Zealand, including Goolagong, Te Kanawa, Oodgeroo Noonuccal and Dame Whina Cooper. The power of the media in shaping the lives of individuals and communities for good or ill is widely acknowledged. In these pages, Karen Fox examines an especially fascinating and revealing aspect of the media and its history: how prominent M ori and Aboriginal women were depicted for the readers of popular media in the past.
