New Writing In Japan Writing Today:

Writing Japan's War in New Guinea Victoria Eaves-Young, 2025-10-01 Tamura Yoshikazu is destined to die on the alien shores of the New Guinea warzone Devoid of family contact perplexed by the unfamiliarity of his environment deprived of even meagre amenities and faced with the spectre of debilitating illness and starvation this solitary soldier commenced a diary in the early part of 1943 Employed in the hard labour of building airstrips he is ground down by tedium disheartened by the now dysfunctional military hierarchy consumed by grief at the meaningless deaths of comrades and stripped of any chance of being involved in an aspect of war that he considers heroic and meaningful Profoundly unsettled by all that appears to be at odds with the kokutai ideology Tamura employs strategies through the vehicle of his diary to enable him to remain committed to the pathway of death on behalf of the Emperor

Writing Technology in Meiji Japan Seth Jacobowitz, 2020-05-11 Writing Technology in Meiji Japan boldly rethinks the origins of modern Japanese language literature and visual culture from the perspective of media history Drawing upon methodological insights by Friedrich Kittler and extensive archival research Seth Jacobowitz investigates a range of epistemic transformations in the Meiji era 1868-1912 from the rise of communication networks such as telegraph and post to debates over national language and script reform He documents the changing discursive practices and conceptual constellations that reshaped the verbal visual and literary regimes from the Tokugawa era These changes culminate in the discovery of a new vernacular literary style from the shorthand transcriptions of theatrical storytelling rakugo that was subsequently championed by major writers such as Masaoka Shiki and Natsume Soseki as the basis for a new mode of transparently objective transcriptive realism The birth of modern Japanese literature is thus located not only in shorthand alone but within
