Recent Climatic Change A Regional Approach:

Exploring Climate Change through Science and in Society Mike Hulme, 2013-09-11 Mike Hulme has been studying climate change for over thirty years and is today one of the most distinctive and recognisable voices speaking internationally about climate change in the academy in public and in the media. The argument that he has made powerfully over the last few years is that climate change has to be understood as much as an idea situated in different cultural contexts as it is as a physical phenomenon to be studied through universal scientific practices. Climate change at its core embraces both science and society both knowledge and culture. Hulme's numerous academic and popular writings have explored what this perspective means for the different ways climate change is studied, narrated, argued over and acted upon. Exploring Climate Change through Science and in Society gathers together for the first time a collection of his most popular, prominent and controversial articles, essays, speeches, interviews and reviews dating back to the late 1980s. The 50 or so short items are grouped together in seven themes: Science, Researching, Culture, Policy, Communicating, Controversy, Futures, and within each theme are arranged chronologically to reveal changing ideas, evidence and perspectives about climate change. Each themed section is preceded with a brief introduction drawing out the main issues examined. Three substantive unpublished new essays have been specially written for the book, including one reflecting on the legacy of Climategate. Taken as a collection, these writings reveal the changes in scientific and public understandings of climate change since the late 1980s as refracted through the mind and expression of one leading academic and public commentator. The collection shows the many different ways in which it is necessary to approach the idea of climate change to interpret and make sense of the divergent and discordant voices proclaiming it in the public sphere.

Vegetation and climate interactions in semi-arid regions A. Henderson-Sellers, A.J. Pitman, 2012-12-06

The chapters in this section place the problems of vegetation and climate interactions in semi-arid regions into the context which recur throughout the book. First Verstraete and Schwartz review desertification as a process of global change, evaluating both the human and climatic factors. The theme of human impact and land management is discussed further by Roberts whose review focuses on semi-arid land use planning. In the third and final chapter in this section we return to the meteorological theme. Nicholls reviews the effects of El Niño Southern Oscillation on Australian vegetation, stressing in particular the interaction between plants and their climatic environment. Vegetation 91:3 13 1991. Arid and semiarid regions cover one third of the continental areas on Earth. These regions are very sensitive to a variety of physical, chemical and biological degradation processes collectively called desertification.

Geographers Elizabeth Baigent, André Reyes Novaes, 2018-11-15 Geographers Biobibliographical Studies Volume 37 explores the concept of distinction in geography.

Through the lives of six geographers working in Brazil North America Europe and R union it investigates what distinction consists of how we identify and celebrate it and how it relates to quotidian practices in the discipline The volume highlights the continuing importance of biography and the International Geographical Union in recording and assessing distinction It also considers the relevance of personal networks for the circulation and translation of distinguished geographical knowledge and how this knowledge can underpin applied projects and critical appraisal of geographical scholarship both at a national and sub national level Gendered notions of distinction are also addressed particularly through June Sheppard who found limited recognition for her work as a result of gendered expectations within the discipline and society at large By reflecting on how we locate distinguished geographers and tell their histories Geographers Biobibliographical Studies Volume 37 makes an important contribution to fostering less canonical work in historical geography Climate-Ocean Interaction

Hovelsrud,Barry Smit,2010-09-08 The Year That Changed How We View the North This book is about a new theoretical approach that transformed the field of Arctic social studies and about a program called International Polar Year 2007 2008 IPY that altered the position of social research within the broader polar science The concept for IPY was developed in 2003

2005 its vision was for researchers from many nations to work together to gain cross disciplinary insight into planetary processes to explore and increase our understanding of the polar regions the Arctic and Antarctica and of their roles in the global system IPY 2007 2008 the fourth program of its kind followed in the footsteps of its predecessors the first IPY in 1882 1883 the second IPY in 1932 1933 and the third IPY later renamed to International Geophysical Year or IGY in 1957 1958 All earlier IPY IGY have been primarily geophysical initiatives with their focus on meteorology atmospheric and geomagnetic observations and with additional emphasis on glaciology and sea ice circulation As such they excluded socio economic disciplines and polar indigenous people often deliberately except for limited ethnographic and natural history collection work conducted by some expeditions of the first IPY That once dominant vision biased heavily towards geophysics oceanography and ice sheets left little if any place for people that is the social sciences and the humanities in what has been commonly viewed as the hard core polar research
