David L. Eng, David Kazanjian, 2003 If catastrophe is not representable according to the narrative explanations which would make sense of history then making sense of ourselves and charting the future are not impossible But we are as it were marked for life and that mark is insuperable irrecoverable It becomes the condition by which life is risked by which the question of whether one can move and with whom and in what way is framed and incited by the irreversibility of loss itself Judith Butler from the Afterword Loss is a wonderful volume powerful and important deeply moving and intellectually challenging at the same time ethical and not moralistic It is one of those rare collections that work as a multifaceted whole to map new areas for inquiry and pose new questions I found myself educated and provoked by the experience of participating in an ongoing dialogue Amy Kaplan author of The Anarchy of Empire in the Making of U S Culture Enduring Loss in Early Modern Germany Lynne Tatlock, 2010 Cross disciplinary perspectives on responses to material and spiritual loss in early modern Germany trace how individuals and communities registered coped with and made sense of deprivation through a spectrum of activities often turning loss into gain and acquiring agency Lost and Found Emma L.E.
