Real Science:

Real Science John M. Ziman, 2000-04-27 Scientists and anti scientists alike need a more realistic image of science The traditional mode of research academic science is not just a method it is a distinctive culture whose members win esteem and employment by making public their findings Fierce competition for credibility is strictly regulated by established practices such as peer review Highly specialized international communities of independent experts form spontaneously and generate the type of knowledge we call scientific systematic theoretical empirically tested quantitative and so on Ziman shows that these familiar philosophical features of scientific knowledge are inseparable from the ordinary cognitive capabilities and peculiar social relationships of its producers This wide angled close up of the natural and human sciences recognizes their unique value whilst revealing the limits of their rationality reliability and universal applicability It also shows how for better or worse the new post academic research culture of teamwork accountability etc is changing these supposedly eternal philosophical characteristics

Conceptual Anomalies in Economics and Statistics Leland Gerson Neuberger, 1989-05-26 Do economics and statistics succeed in explaining human social behaviour To answer this question Leland Gerson Neuberger studies some pioneering controlled social experiments Starting in the late 1960s economists and statisticians sought to improve social policy formation with random assignment experiments such as those that provided income guarantees in the form of a negative income tax This book explores anomalies in the conceptual basis of such experiments and in the foundations of statistics and economics more generally Scientific inquiry always faces certain philosophical problems Controlled experiments of human social behaviour however cannot avoid some methodological difficulties not evident in physical science experiments Drawing upon several examples the author argues that methodological anomalies prevent microeconomics and statistics from explaining human social behaviour as coherently as the physical sciences explain nature He concludes that controlled social experiments are a frequently overrated tool for social policy improvement
