At the same time this volume also rebalances our understanding of Weber's entire intellectual output by returning The Protestant Ethic and the Spirit of Capitalism to its proper place within Economic Ethic of the World Religions and establishing that work as the equal of the similarly unfinished Economy and Society.

Imagining the Divine Jaś Elsner, Stefanie Lenk, 2017 Religion has always been a fundamental force for constructing identity from antiquity to the contemporary world. The transformation of ancient cults into faith systems which we recognise now as major world religions took place in the first millennium AD in the period we call Late Antiquity. Our argument is that the creative impetus for both the emergence and much of the visual distinctiveness of the world religions came in contexts of cultural encounter. Bridging the traditional divide between classical, Asian, Islamic and Western history, this exhibition and its accompanying catalogue highlights religious and artistic creativity at points of contact and cultural borders between late antique civilisations. This catalogue features the creation of specific visual languages that belong to four major world religions: Christianity, Judaism, Buddhism and Islam. The imagery still used by these belief systems today is evidence for the development of distinct religious identities in Late Antiquity. Emblematic visual forms like the figure of Buddha and Christ or Islamic aniconism only evolved in dialogue with a variety of coexisting visualisations of the sacred. Late antique believers appropriated some competing models and rejected others; they created compelling and long-lived representations of faith but also revealed their indebtedness to a multitude of contemporaneous religious ideas and images. Exhibition, Ashmolean Museum, Oxford, UK, 19.10.2017–18.02.2018. Major Faith Traditions of India V. S.

Lalrinawma, 2007. Confucianism as a World Religion Anna Sun, 2013-04-21 Is Confucianism a religion? If so, why do most Chinese think it isn't? From ancient Confucian temples to nineteenth-century archives to the testimony of people interviewed by the author throughout China over a period of more than a decade, this book traces the birth and growth of the idea of Confucianism as a world religion. The book begins at Oxford in the late nineteenth century when Friedrich Max Müller and James Legge classified Confucianism as a world religion in the new discourse of world religions and the emerging discipline of comparative religion. Anna Sun shows how that decisive moment continues to influence the understanding of Confucianism in the contemporary world, not only in the West but also in China, where the politics of Confucianism has become important to the present regime in a time of transition. Contested histories of Confucianism are vital signs of social and political change. Sun also examines the revival of Confucianism in contemporary China and the social significance of the ritual practice of Confucian temples. While the Chinese government turns to Confucianism to justify its political agenda,

Confucian activists have started a movement to turn Confucianism into a religion Confucianism as a world religion might have begun as a scholarly construction but are we witnessing its transformation into a social and political reality With historical analysis extensive research and thoughtful reflection Confucianism as a World Religion will engage all those interested in religion and global politics at the beginning of the Chinese century
