[A Reduced Photographic Reprint of the Edition of 1944.].* Harold Sprout, Margaret Sprout, 1966 The Rise of American Naval Power, 1776 - 1918 Harold Sprout, Margaret Sprout, 1946 The Rise of American Naval Power 1776-1918. By Harold and Margaret Sprout. Controvich, 2023-05-08 With the centennial of the First World War rapidly approaching historian and bibliographer James T Controvich offers in The United States in World War I A Bibliographic Guide the most comprehensive up to date reference bibliography yet published Organized by subject this bibliography includes the full range of sources vintage publications of the time books pamphlets periodical titles theses dissertations and archival sources held by federal and state organizations as well as those in public and private hands including historical societies and museums As Controvich s bibliographic accounting makes clear there were many facets of World War I that remain virtually unknown to this day Throughout Controvich s bibliography tracks the primary sources that tell each of these stories and many others besides during this tense period in American history Each entry lists the author title place of publication publisher date of publication and page count as well as descriptive information concerning illustrations plates ports maps diagrams and plans The armed forces section carries additional information on rosters awards citations and killed and wounded in action lists The United States in World War I A Bibliographic Guide is an ideal research tool for students and scholars of World War I and American history The Politics of Strategic Adjustment Peter Trubowitz, Emily O. Goldman, Edward Rhodes, 1999 The contributors examine a century of American experience to illustrate how the United States determines its security policies While scholars have typically focused on outside factors such as international pressures constraints and opportunities this collection of essays shows that decisions about strategy are critically shaped by domestic politics political ideologies state structure and societal interest Clad in Iron Howard J. Fuller, 2007-12-30 This work addresses many persistent misconceptions of what the monitors were for and why they failed in other roles associated with naval operations of the Civil War such as the repulse at Charleston April 7 1863 Monitors were ironclads not fort killers Their ultimate success is to be measured not in terms of spearheading attacks on fortified Southern ports but in the quieter much more profound strategic deterrence of Lord Palmerston's ministry in London and the British Royal Navy's potential intervention The relatively unknown Cold War of the American Civil War was a nevertheless crucial aspect of the survival or not of the United States in the mid 19th century Foreign intervention explicitly in the form of British naval power represented a far more serious threat to the success of the Union blockade the safety of Yankee merchant shipping worldwide and Union combined operations against the South than the Confederate States Navy Whether or not the North or South would be clad in iron thus depended on the ability of superior Union ironclads to deter the majority of mid Victorian British leaders otherwise tempted by their desire to see the American experiment in democratic class structures and popular government finally fail Discussions of open European involvement in the Civil War were pointless as long as the coastline of the United States was virtually impregnable Combining extensive archival research on both sides of the Atlantic this work offers an in depth look at how the Union Navy achieved its greatest grand strategic victory in the American Civil War Through a combination of high tech machines armed with monster guns intensive coastal fortifications and a new fleet of high speed Union commerce raiders the North was able to turn the humiliation of the Trent Affair of late 1861 into a sobering challenge to British naval power and imperial defense worldwide Home Squadron James C. Rentfrow, 2014-04-15 This study examines the transformation of the United States Navy as a fighting organization that took place on the North Atlantic Station between 1874 and 1897 At the beginning of this period the warships assigned to this station were collectively administered by a rear admiral but were operationally deployed as individual units each of whose actions were directed by their captains By 1897 the North Atlantic or Home Squadron as it was known was a group of warships constituting a protean battle fleet that is an organized body moving and fighting in close order which meant that the actions of the captains were directed by a commanding admiral The process of the development of an American battle fleet resulted in the construction of a new organizational identity for the North Atlantic Squadron This process was as critical as the eventual outcome It was not linear but one in which progress in critical areas was modulated by conflicting demands that caused distraction From 1874 1888 exercises in fleet tactics under steam were carried out sporadically utilizing existing wooden cruising vessels From 1889 1894 the last wooden cruisers were decommissioned and the Squadron consisted entirely of new steel warships Ad hoc concentrations of vessels for purposes besides exercise and training retarded the continued development of doctrine and tactics necessary for a multi ship fighting capability during this time However much work was done to develop a concept of multi ship operations From 1895 1897 the identity of the North Atlantic Squadron as a combat unit solidified Tactical exercises were held that had specific offensive and defensive wartime applications These exercises were necessary to develop a combat capability The results of this study demonstrate that the United States government had an interest in developing an offensive naval combat capability as early as the 1870 s Based on the record of the North Atlantic Squadron it is argued that imperial aspirations in the sense of possessing a capability to restrict the actions of other great powers in the Caribbean region existed prior to the War of 1898 However the process of change often resulted in the appearance of capability without the rigorous exercise necessary to possess it Military Law Review ,1980 The Statesman's Year-Book M. Epstein,2016-12-27 The classic reference work that provides annually updated information on the countries of the world Mobilizing for Modern War Paul A. C. Koistinen,1997 In this volume Koistinen examines war planning and mobilizing in an era of rapid industrialization and reveals how economic mobilization for defense and war is shaped at the national level by the interaction of political economic and military institutions and by increasingly powerful and expensive weaponry Princeton Alumni Weekly ,1938 Succeeding John Bull D. Cameron Watt,1984-03-29 This book is based on the Wiles lectures for 1981 delivered at the Queen s University of Belfast in October 1981 It is not a history of Anglo American relations in the century its theme deals with how the United States of America came to replace Britain as the primary world and oceanic power confronting a grouping of land based continental powers the position Britain occupied throughout the nineteenth century This theme is examined in the light of how the process of replacement was conceived and perceived by those groups which had the primary responsibility for the formulation and conduct of foreign relations in each of the two powers Britain and America The author whose earlier study of 1965 of the British foreign policy making elites pioneered this approach in Britain argues the existence and continuity over much of this century of similar groups in the United States American War Plans, 1890-1939 Steven T. Ross,2013-09-13 By the close of the 19th century the United States was no longer a continental power but had become a nation with interests that spanned the globe from the Caribbean to China Consequently the country faced a new set of strategic concerns ranging from enforcing the Monroe Doctrine to defending the Philippines As a result of the United States new geostrategic environment the armed services had to establish a system for the creation of war plans to defend the country s interests against possible foreign aggression A Joint Army and Navy Board established in 1903 ordered the creation of war plans to deal with real and potential threats to American security
