

OECD-FAO Agricultural Outlook 2021–2030

Executive Summary

The OECD-FAO Agricultural Outlook 2021–2030 provides a consensus assessment of prospects over the next 10 years for agricultural commodity and fish markets at national, regional and global levels, and serves as a reference for forward-looking policy analysis and planning. The report is a collaborative effort of the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) and the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations (FAO), prepared with input from Member governments and international commodity organisations. It highlights fundamental economic and social trends that will drive the global agri-food sector, assuming no major changes to weather conditions or policies. Since this year's Outlook period ends in 2030, the report's projections also suggest areas where more attention is needed to achieve the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs).

The global agri-food sector has shown resilience during the pandemic, but income losses and food price spikes caused undernourishment to rise

At the time of preparation of this publication, the agricultural and food sector has demonstrated high resilience in face of the global COVID-19 pandemic compared to other sectors of the economy, but the compounding effect of income losses and inflation in consumer food prices have made access to healthy diets more difficult for many people. After an initial economic contraction from the COVID-19 shock, the Outlook projections are based on a widespread economic recovery beginning in 2021. However, the level of global Global Domestic Product (GDP) in 2030 is projected to remain below the pre-pandemic projections for 2030 as the lost GDP during the pandemic is not expected to be fully recovered. The Outlook projects that, following a business as usual path, achieving SDG 2 on zero hunger by 2030 will be particularly challenging.
