

ADMINISTRATIVE MODEL OF CURRICULUM

1

It is called Top down approach. Curriculum development goes from high authority to people at grass root level.

2

Major decision are not taken by teachers but people at high administration and the last phases of the development is done by teacher.

3

Decision by administration and policy makers like what will be taught, how it will be evaluated and how it will be taught

4

Sometimes it is not very effective because the people who are teaching the curriculum are not directly involved in its making.
