Dickens's Household Words Catherine Waters, 2016-12-05 In 1850 Charles Dickens founded Household Words a weekly miscellany intended to instruct and entertain an ever widening middle class readership Published in the decade following the Great Exhibition of 1851 the journal appeared at a key moment in the emergence of commodity culture in Victorian England Alongside the more well known fiction that appeared in its pages Dickens filled Household Words with articles about various commodities articles that raise wider questions about how far society should go in permitting people to buy and sell goods and services in other words how far the laissez faire market should extend At the same time Household Words was itself a commodity With marketability clearly in view Dickens required articles for his journal to be imaginative employing a style that critics ever since have too readily dismissed as mere mannerism Locating the journal and its distinctive handling of non fictional prose in relation to other contemporary periodicals and forms of print culture this book demonstrates the role that Household Words in particular and the Victorian press more generally played in responding to the developing world of commodities and their consumption at midcentury Famous Sayings and Their Authors Edward Latham, 1904

Annual Report of the Receipts and Expenditures Concord (N.H.), 1882 Includes other annual reports and papers relating to the affairs of the city The Thirtieth Annual Report of the Receipts and Expenditures of the City of Concord, for the Year Ending December 31, 1882 City of Concord, 2025-02-15 Reprint of the original first published in 1883 Dickens, Journalism, and Nationhood Sabine Clemm, 2010-04-15 Dickens Journalism and Nationhood examines Charles Dickens weekly family magazine Household Words in order to develop a detailed picture of how the journal negotiated asserted and simultaneously deconstructed Englishness as a unified and sometimes unifying mode of expression It offers close readings of a wide range of materials that self consciously focus on the nature of England as well as the relationship between Britain and the European continent Ireland and the British colonies Starting with the representation and classification of identities that took place within the framework of the Great Exhibition of 1851 it suggests that the journal strives for a model of the world in concentric circles spiraling outward from the metropolitan center of London Despite this apparent orderliness however each of the national or regional categories constructed by the journal also resists and undermines such a clear cut representation Words on Words David Crystal, Hilary Crystal, 2000-10-15 From Homer winged words to Robert Burns Beware a tongue that s smoothly hung to Rudyard Kipling Words are of course the most powerful drug used by mankind writers from all over the world have put pen to paper on the inexhaustible topic of language Yet surprisingly their writings on the subject have never been gathered in a single volume In Words on Words David and Hilary Crystal have collected nearly 5 000 quotations about language and all its intriguing aspects speaking reading writing translation verbosity usage slang and more As the stock in trade of so many professions orators media personalities writers and countless others language s appeal as a subject is extraordinarily relevant and wide ranging The quotations are grouped thematically under 65 different headings from The Nature of Language through the Language of Politics to Quoting and Misquoting This arrangement
