Embodied Learning in Educational Theatre Nancy Smithner, 2025-04-29 This book explores embodied teaching practices through applied and physical theatre drawing extensively on the author's rich experience teaching in diverse urban environments including schools colleges and prison settings It presents a groundbreaking conceptualization of embodied practice aimed at fostering personal and social growth through educational theatre Each chapter delves into theories of social transformation supported by qualitative data from student reflections to provide both theoretical and practical insights These insights illustrate how physicalized pedagogy can be effectively used to engage students with socially transformative ideas and identities It also emphasizes the significant role of the facilitator in this process highlighting how they can create an environment that fosters ethical and multicultural awareness in both formal educational settings such as classrooms and informal settings like community workshops By promoting an ethos of inclusivity and ethical consideration it argues that facilitators can help students navigate and engage with complex social issues through the medium of theatre An accessible and compelling text it aims to inspire educators to adopt innovative methods that promote deeper engagement and understanding among students Department of the Interior and Related Agencies Appropriations for 1997 United States. Congress. House. Committee on Appropriations. Subcommittee on Department of the Interior and Related Agencies, 1996 The NAEP 1997 Arts Report Card Hilary R. Persky, Brent A. Sandene, Janice M. Askew, 1998 The last several years have seen a growing resolve among educators and policymakers to assure the place of a solid arts education in

U S schools In 1997 the National Assessment of Educational Progress NAEP conducted a national assessment in the arts at grade 8 The assessment included the areas of music theater and visual arts For each of these arts areas this Report Card describes the achievement of eighth graders within the general population and in various subgroups Taken with the information provided about instructional and institutional variables this report gives a context for evaluating the status of students learning in the arts The arts assessment was designed to measure the content specifications described in the arts framework for NAEP The arts have a unique capacity to integrate intellect emotions and physical skills in the creation of meaning Meaningful arts assessments need to be built around three arts processes creating performing and responding To capture these processes the arts assessment exercises included authentic tasks that assessed students knowledge and skills and constructed response and multiple choice questions that explore students abilities to describe analyze interpret and evaluate works of art in written form Data are reported in overall summaries for creating performing and responding in terms of student and school reported background variables Student results for theater are discussed in terms of teacher reported background variables as well The major findings of the assessment are that a large percentage of grade 8 students attend schools in which music and visual arts were taught usually by specialists most students attended schools in which instruction following district or state curricula was offered in music and visual arts but not in theater or dance and most visual arts and music instruction took place in school facilities that were dedicated to that subject JH

Popularizing Scholarly Research Patricia Leavy, 2021-08-17 A scholar's guide for to conducting ethical research with various communities Though the arena of scholarship grows and changes collaboration and community remain vital aspects of research and public scholarship Popularizing Scholarly Research Working with Nonacademic Stakeholders Teams and Communities contextualizes research methods and practices for popularizing research involving teams communities and nonacademic stakeholders Patricia Leavy introduces the move toward making scholarship more accessible outside of academic settings Drawing from the authoritative Oxford Handbook of Methods for Public Scholarship a diversified list of interdisciplinary contributors cover social movements ethical issues working with vulnerable populations outsider insider issues citizens juries community based research participatory action research community art making theatre cross cultural research decolonizing methods team research and disaster research Further supplemental materials included at the end of the book make this title an important addition to any modern researcher's bookshelf Teaching Classroom Drama and Theatre Martin Lewis, John Rainer, 2005 Presenting a series of exciting and challenging practical units for teaching drama in the modern classroom the authors present a model of how teachers can draw together the various methodologies of process drama and traditional theatre teaching Theatre Symposium, Vol. 27 Sarah McCarroll, 2019-10-08 A substantive exploration of bodies and embodiment in theatre Theatre is inescapably about bodies By definition theatre requires the live bodies of performers in the same space and at the same time as the live bodies of an audience And yet it's hard to talk about bodies We talk about characters we talk about actors we talk about costume and movement But we often approach these as identities or processes layered onto bodies rather than as inescapably entwined with them Bodies on the theatrical stage hold the power of transformation Theatre practitioners scholars and educators must think about what bodies go where onstage and what stories which bodies to tell The essays in Theatre Symposium Volume 27 explore a broad range of issues related to embodiment The volume begins with Rhonda Blair's keynote essay in which she provides an overview of the current cognitive science underpinning our understanding of what it means to be embodied and to talk about embodiment She also provides a set of goals and cautions for theatre artists engaging with the available science on embodiment while issuing a call for the absolute necessity for that engagement given the primacy of the body to the theatrical act The following three essays provide examinations of historical bodies in performance Timothy Pyles works to shift the common textual focus of Racinian scholarship to a more embodied understanding through his examination of the performances of the young female students of the Saint Cyr academy in two of Racine's Biblical plays Shifting forward in time by three centuries Travis Stern's exploration of the auratic celebrity of baseball player Mike Kelly uncovers the ways in which bodies may retain the ghosts of their former selves long after physical ability and wealth are gone Laurence D Smith's investigation of actress Manda Bj rling's performances in Miss Julie provides a model for how cognitive science in this case theories of cognitive blending can be integrated with archival theatrical research and scholarship From scholarship grounded in analysis of historical bodies and embodiment the volume shifts to pedagogical concerns Kaja Amado Dunn's essay on the ways in which careless selection of working texts can inflict embodied harm on students of color issues an imperative call for careful and intentional classroom practice in theatre training programs Cohen Ambrose's theorization of pedagogical cognitive ecologies in which subjects usually taught disparately acting theatre history costume design for example could be approached collaboratively and through embodiment speaks to ways in which this call might be answered Tessa Carr's essay on The Integration of Tuskegee High School brings together ideas of historical bodies and embodiment in the academic theatrical context through an examination of the process of creating a documentary theatre production The final piece in the volume Bridget Sundin's exchange with the ghost of Marlene Dietrich is an imaginative exploration of how it is possible to open the archive to create new spaces for performance scholarship via an interaction with the body
