1. The first step in the process is to identify the problem or issue that needs to be addressed. This involves gathering information and understanding the context of the problem.
2. Once the problem is identified, the next step is to define the objectives and goals of the project. This helps to clarify what needs to be achieved and provides a clear direction for the team.
3. The third step is to develop a plan or strategy to address the problem. This involves breaking down the problem into smaller, manageable tasks and determining the resources needed to complete each task.
4. The fourth step is to implement the plan. This involves assigning tasks to team members, setting deadlines, and monitoring progress. It is important to communicate regularly and provide support to team members throughout the process.
5. The final step is to evaluate the results of the project. This involves comparing the actual outcomes to the objectives and goals, identifying any gaps or areas for improvement, and documenting the lessons learned for future reference.

The 1978-1980 period is characterized by a high level of economic activity, with a significant increase in the number of people employed in the manufacturing sector. This period is also marked by a high level of inflation, which is reflected in the high level of prices for many goods and services.
