Rodgers, 2000-01-01 Two different and opposite kinds of readers are developed at the very beginning stages of reading instruction as the result of different and opposite kinds of teaching One kind of reader is taught to read by the sound of print and reads automatically and with great accuracy The other kind of reader is taught to read by the meaning of print as Chinese characters are read and not only reads inaccurately but is actually encouraged to do so by so called psycholinguistic guessing The Hidden Story explains why the teaching of psycholinguistic guessing to beginning readers although it manifestly results in a life long disability has been the experts instructional preference ever since 1870 although the term itself is a relatively recent invention Annual Report of the Board of Education of the City of St. Louis, Mo., for the Year Ending June 30 ... Saint Louis (Mo.). Board of Education, 1920 Success in Reading and Writing Lisa Lord, Helen Cappleman, 1992 Educational resource for teachers parents and kids Children's Reading and Mathematics Achievement in Kindergarten and First Grade Kristin Denton, Kristin Denton Flanagan, Jerry West, 2002 This report is the third in a series based on findings about young children s early experiences with school from the Early Childhood Longitudinal Study Kindergarten Class of 1998 99 ECLS K Sponsored by the U S Department of Education National Center for Education Statistics the ECLS K study selected a nationally representative sample of kindergartners in the fall of 1998 and is following these children through the spring of their fifth grade year The study collects information directly from the children their families teachers and schools This report looks at children's school performance during first grade in terms of their reading and mathematical knowledge and skills by relating them to child family and school characteristics. The report finds that some of the differences in children's reading and mathematics knowledge and skills by child family and school characteristics that are present as they enter kindergarten persist into the spring of their kindergarten and spring of their first grade year. For example, poor children consistently score below the national average in both reading and mathematics across the kindergarten year and into the spring of first grade. These findings also suggest differences that are beginning to emerge by children's sex. By spring of first grade, females are more likely to be reading understanding words in context, whereas males are more likely to be proficient at advanced mathematics multiplication and division. However, some differences do seem to wane. For example, in both reading and mathematics, Hispanic children's scores tend to move upward toward the national mean over these two school years. The longitudinal nature of the ECLS-K will enable researchers to track these differences in terms of children's third and fifth grade reading and mathematics performance. The report also notes that children who bring certain knowledge and skills with them to kindergarten are likely to be at an advantage in classroom learning compared to peers who do not possess such resources. The descriptive analyses of the report show that children who have specific cognitive knowledge and skills are read to frequently possess positive approaches to learning and enjoy very good or excellent general health, perform better in reading and mathematics than those without these resources. Includes data and standard error tables. Appended is a table of regression coefficients for the relationship between children's resources and skills to their spring kindergarten and spring first grade reading performance.
