Religious Fundamentalism in the Contemporary World Santosh C. Saha, 2004-01-01 Today new and ever more pernicious forms of terrorist violence threaten the world. Because these new forms of violence are so often linked to religious radicalism, modern terrorism has challenged the secular ethics of contemporary civil society. There is a pressing need to understand modern religious movements that have added militancy and belligerence as fundamental elements of religious practice. Contributors to this volume painstakingly tackle the question of how to define the contours of current religious fundamentalism as they examine the private and public postures of fundamentalist rhetoric, the importance of its regional variants and the damage it can do to regional and national education systems. Their analysis tracks trends in religious movements that aspire to radicalize reform and violently topple governments and nations while highlighting the difference between fundamentalist interpretations and other longstanding juridical, political and intellectual traditions.

Gendered Agency in War and Peace Maria O'Reilly, 2017-11-03 This book examines how gendered agency emerges in peacebuilding contexts. It develops a feminist critique of the international peacebuilding interventions through a study of transitional justice policies and practices implemented in Bosnia Herzegovina and local activists' responses to official discourses surrounding them. Extending Nancy Fraser's tripartite model of justice to peacebuilding contexts, the book also advances notions of recognition, redistribution and representation as crucial components of gender justice. It argues that recognising women as victims and survivors of conflict, achieving a gender equitable distribution of material and symbolic resources and enabling women to participate as agents of transitional justice processes are all essential for transforming the structural inequalities that enable gender violence and discrimination to materialise before, during and after conflict. This study establishes a new avenue of analysis for understanding responses and resistances to international peacebuilding by offering a sustained engagement with feminist social and political theory.

Party Responses to Social Movements

Daniela R. Piccio,2019-03-11 Across the West the explosion of social movement activity since the late 1960s has constituted a participatory revolution that has posed profound challenges for formal political parties Through an analysis of new interviews institutional documents and a host of other largely unexploited sources Daniela R Piccio provides a rich and empirically grounded exploration of the wide ranging responses to these movements Focusing on Italy and the Netherlands since the 1970s Party Responses to Social Movements demonstrates how political parties have incorporated the demands of movements to a surprising extent even as both have grappled with fundamental and inevitable tensions between their respective roles and aims

Statism, Youth and Civic Imagination Ebenezer Obadare,2010-06-01 This study explores the service citizenship nexus in Nigeria using the National Youth Service Corps NYSC programme as an empirical backdrop It attempts to understand the relationship between civic service and citizenship on the one hand and it examines the question as to whether youth service promotes a sense of citizenship and patriotism on the other In the relevant studies on service and sociology the assumption that service is antecedent to and impacts positively on citizenship is taken for granted However conclusions from this study call for an urgent rethinking of this wisdom Using data from open ended interviews questionnaires and focus group discussions the study traces the ways in which political dynamics in Nigeria have affected the implementation of the NYSC programme The study articulates allegiance to national ideals as an essential foundation for creating and nurturing citizenship Although it upholds the potential of national service as a tool for national integration this research cautions against unalloyed faith in its presumed agency arguing that the limitations imposed by the prevailing socio political ecology should not be ignored
