, When Our Fathers Return to Us as Birds Peter Markus, 2021-09-01 A luminous and heartfelt collection of mourning poetry Over the course of two decades and six books Peter Markus has been making fiction out of a lexicon shaped by the words brother and fish and mud In an essay on Markus's work Brian Evenson writes If it's not clear by now Markus's use of English is quite unique It is instead a sort of ritual speech an almost religious invocation in which words themselves through repetition acquire a magic or power that revives the simpler blunter world of childhood Now in his debut book of poems When Our Fathers Return to Us as Birds Markus tunes his eye and ear toward a new world a world where father is the new brother a world where the father's slow dying and eventual death leads Markus the son to take a walk outside to meet my shadow in the deepening shade In this collection a son is simultaneously caring for his father losing his father and finding his dead father in the trees and the water and the sky He finds solace in the birds and in the river that runs between his house and his parents house with its view of the shut down steel mill on the river's other side now in the process of being torn down The book is steadily punctuated by this recurring sentence that the son wakes up to each day My father is dying in a house across the river The rhythmic and recursive nature to these poems places the reader right alongside the son as he navigates his journey of mourning These are poems written in conversation with the poems of Jack Gilbert Linda Gregg Jim Harrison Jane Kenyon Raymond Carver Theodore Roethke too poets whose poems at times taught Markus how to speak In a dark time we often hear it said there are no words But the truth is there are always words Sometimes our words are all we have to hold onto to help us see through the darkened woods and muddy waters times when the ear begins to listen the eye begins to see and the mouth the body and the heart in chorus begin to speak Fans of Markus's work and all of those who are caring for dying parents or grieving their loss will find comfort kinship and appreciation in this honest and beautiful collection

R.K. SINGH'S POETRY: INTERVIEWS & VIEWS RAM KRISHNA SINGH, 2013-06-13 The volume is a compilation of four interviews the poet gave to researchers and poets eight critical articles evaluating his poetry and one essay the poet wrote to reflect on his creativity

The Poetry of James Wright Andrew Elkins, 1991 In The Poetry of James Wright the author traces Wright's formal evolution and concentrates on his consistent themes the artist's role in society the artist's search for poetic and personal identities the power of poetry as fortification against the onslaughts of time and the definition of a good and humane action Charting the poet's evolution from his first book The Green Wall to the last collections This Journey Elkins discusses one major book in each chapter explicating the more important poems in detail and explaining how each volume is part of a progression from youthful imitator to mature innovator Wright's individual struggle taking place as it did in the last half of the 20th century in America dramatizes the central problems of the creative individual in a late industrial society who is trying to turn a life into art. Wright worked in the great tradition of the adamant individualists in our literary heritage and like all of his formidable ancestors he refused to trust the socialized self he found attached to his soul, refused to be diminished or circumscribed by any society's definition of himself. The effect of reading and studying his complete work is the recognition that Wright is a major 20th century American poet whose apparent simplicity and occasional sentimentality can obscure the complexity and maturity of his courageous confrontation with the problems of living and writhing in contemporary America. A Place Called Return Sienna Elizabeth Raimonde, 2009-10-06 Sienna Elizabeth Raimonde will arrest your attention with her poetry. While she has been writing since childhood, this is her first published book. Poetry she says runs in her blood. Also her two grandmothers were poets and The Poet of the Adirondacks was her great grandfather. Raimonde, while a keen observer of both human nature and nature in general, speaks the language of her times through symbolism, metaphor, and simile. She composes her poetry with a unique blend of sobriety, humor, and mystery juxtaposed with a philosophical twist that is both distinctive and unique. This is a book for everyone. A Descriptive Poem Addressed to Two Ladies at Their Return from Viewing the Mines Near Whitehaven John Dalton, 1755 Man'yōshū (Book 19), 2019-03-27 Book nineteen of the Man'yōshū Anthology of Myriad Leaves continues Alexander Vovin's new English translation of this 20-volume work originally compiled between c. 759 and 785 AD. It is the earliest Japanese poetic anthology in existence and thus the most important compendium of Japanese culture of the Asuka and Nara periods. Book nineteen is the eighth volume of the Man'yōshū to be published to date, following books fifteen (2009), five (2011), fourteen (2012), twenty (2013), seventeen (2016), eighteen (2016), and one (2017). Each volume of the Vovin translation contains the original text, kana transliteration, romanization, glossing, and commentary. The Poetry Contest in Six Hundred Rounds (2 vols) Thomas E. McAuley, 2019-12-02 For the monumental Poetry Competition in Six Hundred Rounds, Roppyakuban uta awase, twelve poets each provided one hundred waka poems: fifty on seasonal topics and fifty on love, which were matched, critiqued by the participants, and judged by Fujiwara no Shunzei, the premiere poet of his age. Its critical importance is heightened by the addition of a lengthy Appeal (chinjō) against Shunzei's judgements by the conservative poet and monk Kenshō. It is one of the key texts for understanding poetic and critical practice in late twelfth-century Japan and of the conflict between conservative and innovative poets. The Competition and Appeal are presented here for the first time in complete English translation with accompanying commentary and explanatory notes by Thomas McAuley. Wild Geese Returning Michele Metail, 2017-03-28 A breathtaking introduction to Chinese multidirectional poems told through the story of Su Hui, the greatest writer of these poems, who embroidered a silk with 840 characters equaling as many as 12,000 multidirectional poems for her distant husband. For nearly two thousand years, the condensed language of classical Chinese has offered the possibility of writing poems that may be read both forward and backward, producing entirely different creations. The genre was known as the flight of wild geese and the poems were often symbolically or literally sent to a distant lover in the hope that he or she like the migrating birds would return Its greatest practitioner and the focus of this critical anthology is Su Hui a woman who in the fourth century embroidered a silk for her distant husband consisting of a grid of 840 characters No one has ever fully explored all of its possibilities but it is estimated that the poem and the poems within the poem may be read as many as twelve thousand ways Su Hui herself said As it lingers aimlessly twisting and turning it takes on a pattern of its own No one but my beloved can be sure of comprehending it With examples ranging from the third to the nineteenth centuries Mich le M tail brings the scholarship of a Sinologist and the playfulness of an avant gardist to this unique collection of perhaps the most ancient of experimental poems
