psychological insight and rigorous moral sense to bear on Wexford's assumptions about the way people behave including his own family as he investigates the mysterious disappearance of two teenagers and their babysitter. There hadn't been anything in living memory like the kind of rain that had caused the River Brede to burst its banks and flood the homes in the area. The Subaqua Task Force could find no trace of the missing teenagers and their babysitter but their mother was still convinced that her children were dead. Not in the Flesh Ruth Rendell, 2010-03-14

From award winning author Ruth Rendell without a doubt the grand dame of British crime fiction. The Gazette comes the chilling new Inspector Wexford novel. Searching for truffles in a wood a man and his dog unearth something less savoury a human hand. The body as Chief Inspector Wexford is informed later has lain buried for ten years or so wrapped in a purple cotton shroud. The post mortem cannot reveal the precise cause of death. The only clue is a crack in one of the dead man's ribs. Although the police database covers a relatively short period of time it stores a long list of Missing Persons. Men women and children disappear at an alarming rate hundreds every day. So Wexford knows he is going to have a job on his hands to identify the corpse. And then only about twenty yards away from the woodland burial site in the cellar of a disused cottage another body is discovered. The detection skills of Wexford Burden and the other investigating officers of the Kingsmarkham Police Force are tested to the utmost to see if the murders are connected and to track down whoever is responsible. The Economist, 1997
