R. M. Ballantyne

River Of Ice:

Rivers of Ice Denny Suckow, 2012-03-20 Rivers of Ice is the title of a collection of short fictional stories. The author intended this book to address the experience of human emotion which winds through all of us and cannot be expunged. Love, hate, loneliness, and ego, along with fear, disappointment, commitment, and elation are just some of the qualities we all share and are given by God. Emotions which are central to the human experience are regarded to be the attributes we all share that are closest to our creator.

Rivers of Ice R. M. Ballantyne, 2007 On a certain summer morning about the middle of the present century a big bluff man of seafaring aspect found himself sauntering in a certain street near London Bridge. He was a man of above fifty but looked under forty in consequence of the healthful vigour of his frame, the freshness of his saltwater face, and the blackness of his shaggy hair.

Rivers of Fortune Bill Caldwell, 2002-01-01 This fast-paced and fascinating story originally published in 1983 covers a vital part of coastal Maine's history too long overlooked: the cultural history of the Penobscot, Kennebec, Saco, and Damariscotta Rivers. More than three hundred years are covered from the days of pioneer settlers, sea captains, river men, and lumberjacks to the shipbuilders, merchants, and lumber barons who made millions from Maine's vast natural and human resources.

Numerical Modelling of Ice Floods in the Ning-Meng Reach of the Yellow River Basin Chunqing Wang, 2018-01-29 The Ning Meng reach of the Yellow River basin is located in the Inner Mongolia region at the Northern part of the Yellow River. Due to the special geographical conditions, the river flow direction is towards the North, causing the Ning Meng reach to freeze up every year in wintertime. Both during the freeze-up and break-up period, unfavourable conditions occur which may cause ice jamming and ice dam formation, leading to dike breaching and overtopping of the embankment. Throughout history, this has often led to considerable casualties and property loss. Enhanced economic development and human activities in the region have altered the characteristics of the ice regime in recent decades, leading to several ice disasters during freezing or breaking-up periods. The integrated water resources management plan developed by the Yellow River Conservancy Commission (YRCC) outlines the requirements for water regulation in the upper Yellow River during ice flood periods. YRCC is developing measures that not only safeguard against ice floods but also assure the availability of adequate water resources. These provide the overall requirements for developing an ice regime forecasting system including lead time prediction and required accuracy. In order to develop such a system, numerical modelling of ice floods is an essential component of current research at the YRCC, together with field observations and laboratory experiments. In order to properly model river ice processes, it is necessary to adjust the hydrodynamic equations to account for thermodynamic effects. In this research, hydrological and meteorological data from 1950 to 2010 were used to analyse the characteristics of ice regimes in the past. Also, additional field observations were carried out for ice flood model calibration and validation. By combining meteorological forecasting models with statistical models, a medium to short range air temperature forecasting model for the Ning Meng reach was established. These results were used to improve ice formation modelling and prolong lead time prediction The numerical ice flood model developed in this thesis for the Ning Meng reach allows better forecasting of the ice regime and improved decision support for upstream reservoir regulation and taking appropriate measures for disaster risk reduction

Ice Loads on Bridge Piers Frederick J. Watts,Walter Podolny,1976 A great deal of information has been published in the last decade concerning ice forces Unfortunately very little has been published in journals that are regularly read by civil engineers and in particular bridge engineers As a result many bridge engineers who are concerned with the action of ice on bridge structures are unaware of its existence Most of the material contained herein has been extracted from papers or proceedings of specialty conferences or reports of research agencies The objective of this paper is to present an overview of the problem and to bring together in one publication a state of the art review of factors and phenomena which are significant to the ice force problems as they relate to the design of bridge piers Page 3 4
