Beyond the Epic Gene D. Phillips, 2006-11-24 Two-time Academy Award winner Sir David Lean (1908-1991) was one of the most prominent directors of the twentieth century, responsible for the classics The Bridge on the River Kwai (1957), Lawrence of Arabia (1962), and Doctor Zhivago (1965). British-born Lean asserted himself in Hollywood as a major filmmaker with his epic storytelling and panoramic visions of history, but he started out as a talented film editor and director in Great Britain. As a result, he brought an art-house mentality to blockbuster films. Combining elements of biography and film criticism, Beyond the Epic: The Life and Films of David Lean uses screenplays and production histories to assess Lean's body of work. Author Gene D. Phillips interviews actors who worked with Lean and directors who knew him, and their comments reveal new details about the director's life and career. Phillips also explores Lean's lesser-studied films, such as The Passionate Friends (1949), Hobson's Choice (1954), and Summertime (1955). The result is an in-depth examination of the director in cultural, historical, and cinematic contexts. Lean's approach to filmmaking was far different than that of many of his contemporaries. He chose his films carefully and, as a result, directed only sixteen films in a period of more than forty years. Those films, however, have become some of the landmarks of motion picture history. Lean is best known for his epics, but Phillips also focuses on Lean's successful adaptations of famous works of literature, including retellings of plays such as Brief Encounter (1945) and novels such as Great Expectations (1946), Oliver Twist (1948), and A Passage to India (1984). From expansive studies of war and strife to some of literature's greatest high comedies and domestic dramas, Lean imbued all of his films with his unique creative vision. Few directors can match Lean's ability to combine narrative sweep and psychological detail, and Phillips goes beyond Lean's epics to reveal this unifying characteristic in the director's body of work. Beyond the Epic is a vital assessment of a great director's artistic process and his place in the film industry.

How Stage Playwrights Saved the British Cinema, 1930-1956 David Cottis, 2024-12-26 Examines the film careers and work of British playwrights who worked as screenwriters between 1930-1956. During the period between the 1927 Cinematograph Films Act and the new drama of the 1950s, many British writers associated with the stage also wrote for films, bringing the techniques of the well-made play with them. Some like Bernard Shaw, Noel Coward, and Terence Rattigan were screenwriter stars; part of the publicity of the films they worked on (Pygmalion, Brief Encounter, The Way to the Stars). Others were less celebrated but had long successful screen careers, such as R.C. Sherriff, author of Journey's End, who worked on films as different as The Invisible Man, The Four Feathers, and The Dam Busters. Using the authors' original archives, this book follows the way in which these writers adapted their stage skills for the screen, contributing to the post-war Golden Age of the British cinema and creating

Bernard Shaw on Cinema Bernard Shaw, 1997 When an interviewer asked Bernard Shaw whether speaking personally he would prefer to see the English and Americans become drama and variety fans as of old rather than movie fans Shaw replied Speaking personally I should prefer to see them become Shaw fans With his customary wit and quite often with remarkable prescience Shaw began a dialogue on cinema that ran almost from the infancy of the industry in 1908 until his death in 1950 Bernard F Dukore presents the first collection of Bernard Shaw's writings and oral statements about cinema Of the more than one hundred comments Dukore has selected fifty nine more than half are new to today's readers Twelve are previously unpublished one is published in full for the first time and forty six appear in a collected edition of Shaw's writings for the first time since their publication in newspapers and magazines Very early in the life of cinema Shaw perceived that as an invention movies would be more momentous than the printing press because they appealed to the illiterate as well as the literate to the manual laborer at the end of an exhausting day as well as to the person with more leisure He predicted that cinema would form people's minds and shape their conduct He recognized that cinema's colossal proportions make mediocrity compulsory by leveling art and life down to the blandest morality and to the lowest common denominator of potential audiences throughout the world By 1908 Shaw was familiar with experiments synchronizing movies and sound When talkies arrived he discerned that they would precipitate major changes in acting
